Reds Abandon Krasnodar In Western Caucasus, but Hold Lines on Don River

Forty-Four German Tanks Destroyed and 1,150 Germans Killed; Stalin-grad Still Menaced

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW, Thursday, Aug. 20 (AP)—Russian troops have abandoned Krasnodar in the Western Caucasus in an apparent retreat toward the Black Sea Base of Novorossiisk, but the Soviet communiqué early today said there was no material change in the Don river bend lines west of Stalingrad.

Forty-four German tanks were reported destroyed and more than 1,150 Germans killed in fighting extending 70 miles on the Caucasian foothills in the south to Leningrad on the Baltic.

"After stubborn battles during which heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy in men and equipment, our troops evacuated the town of Krasnodar," the communiqué said.

Drive toward West

The Kuban river stronghold of Krasnodar which the Germans claimed Aug. 9 is about sixty air miles from Novorossiisk, Soviet Black Sea naval base, and Russian troops also were fighting south of Krasnodar in an apparent westerly withdrawal from the abandoned Maikop oil fields.

The communiqué located the Stalingrad battle scene as still "southeast of Kletskaia" in the Don river bend, and "northeast of Kotelnikovskii." Kletskaia is seventy-five miles northwest of the Volga industrial city, but unofficial reports have said the Nazis were threatening the western bank of the Don which is only about fifty miles from Stalingrad.

Kotelnikovskii is ninety-five miles southwest of Stalingrad. The Russians said the Germans concentrated more than 100 tanks in one sector southeast of Kletskaia in an effort to crash through the Soviet lines. Thirty-one of these were reported destroyed as well as twenty-five trucks filled with Nazi troops. Altogether 400 Germans were killed in this single sector, the communiqué added.

The fighting on both approaches to Stalingrad continued through the night.

Russian Lines Holding
In the Caucasian foothills Russian troops still were battling grimly to check the German sweep through Pyatkovsk toward the Grozny oil fields beyond. Today's communiqué indicated the Russian lines for the moment were holding in this sector.

Local fighting was reported on the Leningrad-Volkhov front near the Baltic. A German attempt to cross a river in the area was declared to have been repulsed by Soviet artillery.

The Russians still had time to lash out by air at Germany proper. An announcement last night said that Soviet bombers had raided Danzig, Koenigsberg and Tilsit on the Nazi-held Baltic coast, setting a large number of fires in all three cities without the loss of a single raider.

(British sources said in London that stiffening Red army resistance finally was slowing the German drive into the Caucasus, but that the Germans had reached the west bank of the Don at its bend fifty miles from Stalingrad.)

Russian dispatches said the Germans had strengthened their attack (Continued on Page 2, Col. 8)

Kaiser Wants To Pay Girls $62.40 A Week To Work in His Shipyards

By AMY PORTER

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 19 (AP)—Give a big hand to Susie, the beautiful welder, new heroine of the booming shipyards along the Pacific coast.

Officials of the vast yards managed by that unorthodox prodigy among shipbuilders, Henry J. Kaiser, today made two startling announcements, both involving Susie.

First, Kaiser will toss off another shipbuilding record on Aug. 28, when Liberty ship No. 567 is launched, just twenty-seven days after her keel was laid. Never before anywhere in the world, was a cargo ship of such size, in excess of 10,000 tons, built so fast. This record

Thousands in 1-B Class To Become Subject To Serve

Selective Service System Abolishes Its "Limited Service"

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP)—The selective service system today abolished its "limited service" class 1-B, the group with minor physical defects, and ordered all but the totally unfit reclassified as available for military service.

Nearing exhaustion of the pool of 1-A registrants, those free of any known physical handicaps and not deferred from active duty for any other reason, the army recently called for induction of men from the 1-B class.

This decision, resulting in filling local draft quotas with 1-A and 1-B registrants, has made the latter classification meaningless for all practical purposes of the selective service system, and its members will either be placed in 4-F, if totally unfit for service, or shifted to 1-A.

Effective Today

The order is effective tomorrow, said an announcement by selective service headquarters, but the reclassification of men in this group will begin September 1, to be completed by new year's day. Not more than one-fourth of the 1-B registrants in any local board area are to be shifted to class 1-A in any single month.

When members of this group are reclassified, they will be sent to induction centers as local boards fill their quotas, and the army will decide after their induction whether to assign them to full or limited duties.

In the reclassification process, the men will be reexamined by the local draft board physicians to determine whether there are any physical deficiencies which would prevent them from performing any (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Nelson Says He Will Get Tough And Fight Foes

Production Chief Fighting Mad Over Criticism of WPB

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP)—War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson, "obviously fighting mad and ready for a showdown on his administration of the war program," asserted today that "from now on any one who crosses my path is going to have his head taken off."

Asked if he planned to "get tough" in licking materials shortages and in refuting charges of some critics that WPB had mismanaged the war program, Nelson told the Associated Press:

"I'm going to get tough enough to get this job done, and the job will be done, you can be sure of that. There'll be no more alibis. I'm sick of them."

Nelson, ordinarily calm and even-tempered, smashed a fist into his hand to make the point.

Swiftly attacking one internal problem—the "leak" of confidential WPB reports—Nelson gave immediate effect of his warning that heads would fall by dismissing a $5,600 WPB employee.

"He's fired," Nelson said flatly.

Talked with Reporter

A WPB spokesman, who declined to be quoted by name, identified the victim as Frederick I. Libbey, an engineering consultant. Libbey, the spokesman said, discussed contents of a confidential report with a newspaper reporter.

The report, which Libbey was drafting, covered operations of the WPB iron and steel branch, and the newspaper story said it accused the branch of operational waste and inefficiency.

He was newly returned to his desk after a week-long rest and physical check up in the Adirondacks—a week which was marked in Washington by steadily mounting criticism of his regime as production czar, forecasts of widespread plant shutdowns and hints that the armed services were ready to act as receivers to a bankrupt civilian management of the war.

"Too Much Loose Talk"
"There has been too much loose talk about this program," Nelson asserted. "They said that one thousand plants may be shut down for lack of materials. That is wrong. In every program, there must be adjustments, and we are making those adjustments now. I can see the way ahead and we're going to come out on top," Nelson said.

Reach Agreement On Inter-Union Controversies

AFL and CIO Workers May Hold Jobs in War Production Plants

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 19 (AP)—A tentative agreement to banish inter-union controversies in the event workers are transferred from non-essential to essential war industries in Maryland was reached today during a Labor Victory Board meeting in Governor O'Connor's office.

The plan was not disclosed in full but O'Connor and A. L. Liveright, Baltimore area director for the Federal War Manpower Commission, said today's steps indicated that, if sanctioned by national labor leaders, members of opposite unions would be able to work side-by-side harmoniously in all Maryland defense plants.

O'Connor said that it was proposed that the AFL and CIO members of the LVB submit the plan to Washington labor officials for approval in the hope that it might also be adopted on a nation-wide basis.

If approved, he said, AFL union members transferred from a non-essential industry to a war plant would be assured that CIO members working on the same jobs would not raise objections which eventually might tie up the entire plant in a controversy damaging to the war effort.

No Complaints Received
"However," O'Connor said, "at present it is gratifying to report that no complaints of this nature have arisen in any Maryland plant. In addition, the plan proposed today (Continued on Page 8, Col. 1)

Raiders Happy On Return from Attack on Nazis

Cheered in Britain after Long Battle; Some Are Wounded

By ERNEST AGNEW

A SOUTHERN BRITISH PORT, Aug. 19 (AP)—Grinning, singing Allied Commandos were landed at this port early tonight from power-driven sea-going barges, grimy but happy after the nine-hour battle of Dieppe.

Truck-drivers cheered them as they were loaded into lorries for transportation to headquarters.

The wounded, also, were arriving and taken to hospital tents. A former dance hall was converted into a casualty clearing station and cots which covered the floor soon were filled with wounded, the majority only slightly hurt. There was a constant stream of ambulances from the hall to hospitals near army bases.

Commandos Painted

Black, green and yellow paint splashed the faces of the Commandos, their uniforms were torn and one walked barefoot across the street, carrying his boots in his hands.

All wore Balachava helmets and the major had on soft tennis shoes. "Good show, boys!" the waiting transport drivers shouted.

Cottagers, during a brief delay while one group of Commandos waited for places in trucks, rushed indoors and came out with cups of tea and cigarettes for the soldiers.

One truck drove off so quickly that a Commando had no time to return his cup. The woman who had given it to him looked glum for a second, then said: "well, he's worth it."

BIG AUSTRALIAN CRUISER SUNK BY JAPANESE IN THE SOLOMONS

MELBOURNE, AUSTRALIA, Thursday, Aug. 20 (AP)—Prime Minister John Curtin today announced the loss of the Australian cruiser Canberra in the Solomon Islands battle.

(The Canberra is listed in Jane's Fighting Ships, standard naval work, as one of Australia's two largest cruisers, a 10,000-ton vessel completed in 1928. She carried eight-inch guns. The Australia is her sister ship.)

Curtin said there were few casualties aboard the cruiser, which was usually carried about 700 men. The Canberra, the third cruiser lost by Australia in the war, was

COMMANDOS DESTROYED, NAZI REPORT OF ATTACK DECLARES

Not Even Necessary to Call upon Reinforcements, German High Command Says in Bulletin

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), Aug. 19 (AP)—The German high command said in a special bulletin tonight that the Allied forces which attacked the French coast near Dieppe today were "destroyed without the calling up of reinforcements of important strength."

The Allies suffered "very high casualties in killed and wounded," and German defense forces captured 1,500 prisoners, including sixty Canadian officers, the communiqué said.

The Allies also lost three destroyers, two torpedo boats, four transports, one speedboat and eighty-three planes in this "invasion catastrophe," the Germans said.

Large Landing Force

From 300 to 400 landing boats participated in the first wave of the attack, the communiqué said, protected by thirteen to fifteen cruisers and destroyers. A reserve of thirty-two transports also were concentrated in the channel, but "probably the great mass of landing forces were not sent into action," the Germans said.

The Berlin radio announcer in giving these details of the Dieppe fight said:

"The Churchill landing attempt near Dieppe was made under Stalin's pressure despite all objections by Churchill's military experts and advisers, states official German comment on the invasion catastrophe of the Allied expedition corps on the European continent."

German coastal artillery and airplanes went into action "according to plan" when the Allies first attacked, the agency said. Numerous British landing boats were reported sunk in these first broadsides and several transports were said to have

Farley-Roosevelt Showdown Today; Both Confident

Supporters of Mead and Bennett Fighting for N. Y. Delegates

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP)—The struggle between the opposing choices of President Roosevelt and his former political lieutenant, James A. Farley, for the New York Democratic gubernatorial nomination, developed into a "war of nerves" tonight on the eve of a final showdown.

A last ditch fight on the floor of the party's state convention, which held a brief and outwardly peaceful opening session in Brooklyn today, was virtually assured as spokesmen for both sides clung to their predictions of victory and discounted all talk of compromise.

Terence J. McManus, chairman of the Mead-for-Governor committee, declared the name of United States Senator James M. Mead, favored by the president, will be presented to the convention for a nominating roll call tomorrow and added:

"We believe that despite all claims that have come from the Farley group, that he will be nominated."

But Farley, backing Attorney General J. Bennett, Jr., for the nomination, said his forces were "not compromising" on any other candidate, claiming more than 670 of the 1014 delegates. And, again urging that Mead withdraw, declared the Buffalo senator's supporters "surely (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

Losses Heavy on Both Sides, but Allies Get Best of 9-Hour Battle

Shore Battery, Ammunition Dump and Radio Location Station Wrecked; Allies Lose 95 Planes and Germans at Least 82 in One of Greatest Air Battles in History; Invaders Gain Vital Experience

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

Picked United States rangers and soldiers of three allies successfully completed the greatest Commando raid of the war yesterday, smashing vaunted German defenses on the French coast at Dieppe in an all-day battle which, although admittedly costly in both lives and material, gave the Allied command invaluable lessons toward opening a second front in Europe.

The battle on the broad beaches before Dieppe and in and around the historic channel port saw new allied tank-landing craft in action for the first time.

The size of the force still was an official secret hours after the mission was completed but some of the returning troops told how a mile-long string of invasion barges set out for the raid at twilight Tuesday. The barges, escorted by destroyers and corvettes, moved under their own power.

Preliminary results ashore reported ed up to early tonight were these: Destruction of a six-gun shore artillery battery, an ammunition dump, and anti-aircraft battery and a radio location station.

Allied fighter planes, making up what perhaps was the greatest aerial canopy yet sent aloft, shot down at least eighty-two enemy aircraft and probably destroyed or damaged more than 100 others, in addition to a number smashed by naval vessels.

95 Allied Planes Lost
Some ninety-five Allied planes—out of a total force of approximately 1,000—were lost.

Some of the Allied tanks were lost in the fighting on shore, others were re-embarked.

For the first time these machines were landed from new, secret British tank-landing vessels.

The landings were made at dawn and throughout the fine, hot day the fighting was the fiercest—nothing unexpected in this defense zone, where the fortifications are so strong and where the layout of harbors, basins, locks and channels as complicated as anywhere on the northern French coast.

Gain Vital Experience
Tonight's communiqué laid stress on the "vital experience gained in employment of substantial numbers of troops in an assault, and in the transportation and use of heavy equipment during combined operations."

That meant plainly that this was a full-scale rehearsal for the second front.

Some sources called it "invasion in miniature."

The Allied side did not divulge the size of the force involved, but the Germans estimated, by radio, tonight that about one division was involved, or perhaps 15,000 men.

They claimed 1,500 Allied prisoners.

Usual German Claims
The Germans also said 300 to 400 landing barges, thirty-two transports and three freighters were employed, and that they were protected by thirteen to fifteen cruisers and destroyers. They claimed to have destroyed three cruisers, three "torpedo boats" and three transports.

None of this, obviously, was confirmed here.

From beginning to end of the attack the British, through the medium of the radio, told the French that this operation was not the second front, that the day of liberation was not yet at hand.

Canadian troops, fresh from extensive attack maneuvers, made up the bulk of the force which the Royal Navy escorted across the channel in the hours before dawn. With them, however, were American troops from a crack detachment of "rangers," British Commandos, (Continued on Page 2, Col. 6)

War Production Board Predicts 9,000,000 Tons of Ships in '42

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP)—The War Production Board expects to see President Roosevelt's shipbuilding goal for this year—8,000,000 deadweight tons—not only achieved but surpassed by about ten per cent.

On the basis of a record-breaking performance by the nation's shipbuilders and the increased need for cargo space, WPB has boosted its schedule closer to 9,000,000 tons for the year than to 8,000,000, it was disclosed by an official who asked that his name be withheld.

WPB approval of the increase, scheduled by the Maritime Commission means that the board feels itself ready to give assurance that (Continued on Page 2, Col. 1)

Two Submarines Reported Sunk In Brazil Area

One Other Attacked and Two More Sighted in South Atlantic

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 19 (AP)—Two submarines were declared sunk off the Brazilian coast, one other was attacked and two more were sighted in the waters of the western South Atlantic in recent operations, totaled up late today as Brazil cleared the sea lanes of all her merchant shipping.

The most recently attacked submarine was sunk early today near Bahia where it was sighted by planes of Brazil's coastal patrol. The sinking occurred shortly after announcement of the destruction of a U-boat by a United States medium bomber, piloted by Capt. Jack Lacey, U. S. A., off the coast of Sergipe.

Lacey's victim was machine-gunned bombed back to the surface as it tried to submerge and then finished off with direct hits.

Gigantic Submarine
The submarine sunk this morning was one of two reported sighted in the western South Atlantic earlier, and the other was described as "enormous size" so big that a fishing boat crew believed it was a merchantman until it died.

Radio reports reaching here, supposedly from British Guiana, told of a submarine attacked and another sighted by Royal Air Force planes yesterday in the West Indies.

In the face of the renewed and concentrated attacks, Brazil called all ships into the nearest ports.

Government Plans Action
The government recalled all furloughed soldiers and prepared naval forces for counter-blows on the submarines, but there was no indication of an immediate declaration of war.

The afternoon newspaper O Globo announced the sinking of the submarine this morning but did not identify the attack planes. It said the first submarine was sunk by a B-18 American bomber after being sighted fifty miles off Aracaju, capital of the state of Sergipe.

O Globo said the submarine went down when struck squarely by bombs from the diving plane despite stout defense put up by the U-boat's deck machine-guns.

Meanwhile naval units continued the search for survivors of the five torpedoed Brazilian ships. The continued arrival of survivors on isolated beaches and the washing ashore of shark-mutilated bodies at widely separated points indicated many days may pass before accurate information on losses are available.

The city was still under the police curfew order which was republished today in all papers, specifying that bars and shops close at 8 p. m. and all amusements at 10 a. m.

Solomon Islands Battle Continues

United States Forces Trying To Extend Their Footholds

By C. YATES McDANIEL
GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, Aug. 19 (AP)—Fighting in the Solomon Islands, which apparently had settled down to a methodical extension of footholds gained by United States forces, continued today with the broad object of stopping Japanese expansion toward the south-east.

Land, sea and air forces were slugging energetically, but details were undisclosed by military headquarters here, or by Washington.

The absence of official reports and of anything approaching a blow-by-blow account, did not suggest to observers, however, that the battle was over. On the contrary, an impression grew that dislodging the enemy from positions fortified for weeks may be a long and tedious task.

One of the liveliest subjects of speculation concerned the Japanese fleet, and what it has been up to since it retreated after a clash with American war vessels the night of Aug. 8-9. Naval authorities were silent, and communications have mentioned no enemy convoys or war vessels moving in or approaching the battle area.

Many Face Arrest For Failure To Get $5 Federal Car Stamp

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19 (AP)—Collector of Internal Revenue W. Hampton Magruder said today a list of persons who had not complied with the $5 federal-use tax stamp in Baltimore was presented to United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn for possible prosecution.

Other checks made at Frederick, Laurel and Salisbury produced a list of delinquents which would also be presented to Flynn, Magruder said.

"It does not follow that every person who is summoned to appear in court will be fined or imprisoned. They will be given hearings," Magruder continued.

"But this procedure," Magruder added, "is taken to make it clear to all automobilists that they must display on their cars this $5 federal use stamp and that the government is determined to collect it. It is hoped that it will lead all owners of cars to get their stamps."

Japanese Planes Hunted Like Ducks By Crews of Americans in Aleutians

By WILLIAM L. WORDEN
ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Aug. 19 (AP)—The story of a mammoth duck hunt by three United States army pilots—who substituted Japanese patrol planes for ducks—was related today by officers of the air force defending Alaska.

The hunt took place in the cloud-banks over the Aleutian islands several days ago, with two vicious army interceptor fighters as the hunters and an army bomber as the bird dog.

The bag was at least one four-motored Japanese seaplane, and perhaps three.

The hunters took off early one morning, and moved to a previously agreed-upon rendezvous over a rocky island between twice-bombed Dutch harbor and Japanese-occupied Kiska.

The bomber was piloted by Lieut. Major H. MacWilliams, and he went ahead in true bird-dog fashion, roaring over a thick cloud-bank at medium altitude. Behind, came the two hunters—Lieut. Kenneth Ambrose, 23, of Berkeley, Calif., and Lieut. Stanley A. Long, 22, Forest Lake, Minn.

Sights Jap Bombers
Suddenly Lieutenant MacWilliams sighted two Japanese bombers—placidly moving east fully loaded with bombs intended for United States surface craft, and apparently happy in the belief there were no United States fighters within hundreds of miles.

MacWilliams wireless his discovery to the fighters. They climbed to 20,000 feet and almost immediately sighted two bombers twenty miles east of MacWilliams, and flying at 7,000 feet.

Long and Ambrose dove immediately, roaring down behind the bombers which were flying so close together that Long's first burst of fire struck the right hand Jap plane in the windshield and cockpit and the plane on the left in the belly.

His attack so surprised the Japanese that Long roared on past without drawing any return fire.

Movie Notables In Commando Unit

Doug Fairbanks, Jr., and Jock Lawrence Believed Fighting Nazis

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19 (AP)—It's a long way from the luxury of Hollywood to bomb blasted beaches of France, but the movie town was pardonably proud today to learn that a pair of its favorite sons had made the jump.

Navy Lieut. Doug Fairbanks, Jr., apparently was doing in the flesh the sort of things his famous father did in the films— for Commandos are noted for athletic feats extraordinary. That he had volunteered for Commando training was news to most of Hollywood, although a few friends heard recently that he was in London.

Before that, he was on North Atlantic convoy duty.

Major J. B. Lawrence of the army is better known here as Jock Lawrence, former publicity director for the Samuel Goldwyn studio and the Hays office, or more formally, the Motion Picture Producers Association.

Lawrence left five months ago to join army intelligence, was assigned to Washington, and went to London July 1 as aide to Lord Louis Mountbatten, chief of the Commandos.

"I've heard from Jack several times," said his pretty wife, Mary, "but nothing about his work. I'm so proud of him."

The production chief added that the "adjustments" probably would be made public shortly. He did not disclose their nature.

Capital observers found great significance in Nelson's new belligerence. Among other things, it was known that Nelson and Price Administrator Leon Henderson, famous here for his frankness and pugnacity, held a "war talk" in Burlington, Vermont, last week while Nelson was on vacation.

No More "Fifth Wheels"
Nelson made it plain he would no longer tolerate "fifth wheels" in any of the divisions under his control. One of the most frequent criticisms lodged against him has been that he was unwilling to burden his organization of non-producers and misfits.

Nelson never has acknowledged that any conflict existed or that lines of authority were obscure or being crossed by the military but some of his subordinates say such is the case.

In recent weeks this beneath-the-surface conflict has reached unusual proportions, brought to a head by the temporary shutdown of some plants working on army and navy contracts.

The speculation that as many as 1,000 plants might be shut down to all automobilists that they must display on their cars this $5 federal use stamp and that the government is determined to collect it. It is hoped that it will lead all owners of cars to get their stamps.

"But this procedure," Magruder added, "is taken to make it clear to all automobilists that they must display on their cars this $5 federal use stamp and that the government is determined to collect it. It is hoped that it will lead all owners of cars to get their stamps."

British Editors Hail Commando Raid as Victory

Complete Success, They Declare in Gleeful Editorials

LONDON, Thursday, Aug. 20 (AP)—The British press today hailed the Allied attack on Dieppe as a "complete success" and all agreed it was a prelude to the establishment of a second front.

The News Chronicle said "the raid, though obviously planned independently of Moscow decisions, was thus psychologically most opportune. We look on it as an earnest of still bigger things to come."

The Glasgow Herald asserted that the "relatively prolonged nature of the daylight attack and the very extensive provision of air cover" in addition to the use of tanks pointed to a test of "preparations made for an invasion of the continent on an immensely larger scale."

The Daily Express commented: "We attacked one of the best defended points on the occupied coast in order to find out some more about German strength without revealing too much about our own."

The Manchester Guardian suggested that the "hysterical tone" of the Nazi announcements and the "wildness of their claims" provided "the best assurances we could have that they fear our pressure and the losses, especially air losses, implied for their thinly strung out forces."

Farley-Roosevelt

know the outcome." Only 508 delegate votes are necessary to nominate.

In the welter of claim and counter-claim, McManus accused Farley of "a repetition of the same spirit of personal antagonism to the president in 1940 and he (McManus) was not."

Opposed Third Term
Farley, who steered two of Roosevelt's three successful presidential campaigns, opposed his third term nomination but subsequently voted for him.

"There is no bitterness or stubbornness on our side," he added, "we just want to go through and nominate the best fellow to make the race."

McManus challenged Frank W. Kelly, Democratic leader of Kings county where Bennett forces claim all but one of the 193 delegates who may determine the nomination, to permit the group to "vote as their conscience and judgment would dictate."

Under such circumstances, he claimed, "a vast majority of them would cast their votes for Senator Mead."

There was a report that Democratic National Chairman Edward J. Flynn, who controls the potent Bronx delegation to the convention and has endorsed Mead, had received word from the chief executive that he would support a compromise candidate in the interests of harmony, but Flynn declined to lend substance to the report.

Much Jockeying Noticed
The rest of the day was spent in behind-the-scenes jockeying with leaders of the opposing forces continuing efforts to round up delegates.

While many veteran politicians viewed the battle as one between Farley and the president for control of the state party organization, reports circulated that Mr. Roosevelt had advised friends that the contest under no circumstances should be construed as a personal fight for such control.

Farley, as state chairman, was tendered a cordial reception when he opened the session which lasted exactly an hour and four minutes and was devoted largely to organization and to hearing a keynote speech by incumbent Governor Herbert H. Lehman, whose refusal to accept nomination for a fifth term prompted the heated intra-party battle.

Lehman attacked "fence straddlers" and "political opportunists" on the war issue and expressed the view that the state social reforms secured under recent Democratic administrations would not be safe in the hands of a Republican governor.

military service. If such defects are discovered, the registrants will be placed in class 4-F.

Local Boards Warned
While physical deficiencies were the only basis for assigning men to class 1-B in the original classification, the local boards were warned that their status may have changed since that time, and possible deferment for dependency, family relationship or occupation should be considered in each case.

The change also will have a limited effect on some conscientious objectors. Those previously classified 1-B-O, fit for limited service in non-combatant units, or 4-E-LS, fit for limited service in civilian work camps, now will be classified 1-A-O if fit for non-combatant service, or 4-E if fit for induction into work camps. If physically disqualified for either type of service they will be classified 4-F.

Newspapers Will Not Be Indicted, Mitchell Asserts

Publication of Johnston Stories Not Violation, Grand Jury Finds

CHICAGO, Aug. 19 (AP)—A federal grand jury's investigation of the publication of allegedly confidential naval information by The Chicago Tribune, the New York Daily News and The Washington Times Herald ended today with a decision that no violation of the law had been disclosed.

William D. Mitchell, special assistant attorney general who directed the inquiry, stated the jury had "considered the case fully and its conclusion that no violation of the law was disclosed settles the matter."

Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of The Tribune, stated "I never had the slightest fear of an indictment." He added:

"The attitude of The Tribune is today what it was before the grand jury investigation was launched and as it was the day after Pearl Harbor. Our whole effort is to win the war, and we will not indulge in any factionalism excepting insofar as we are persecuted and have to defend ourselves."

Story Criticized
Subject of the investigation was a story published on June 7, Material for the article—an estimate of the size and strength of the Japanese fleet defeated in the Midway battle—was gathered by Stanley Johnston, a war correspondent for The Tribune. His newspaper reported it was written here and that it was based on knowledge Johnston gained while witnessing the Coral Sea engagement, information in the publication, "Jane's Fighting Ships," naval annual, and his previous discussions with naval officers and experts.

When the grand jurors completed their five-day inquiry, Mitchell issued a statement saying they had decided that no indictment should be returned and adding:

"I was asked by the attorney general to come out here and conduct the inquiry, and in so doing, to see that the grand jury had before them all the facts."

"I have conducted the inquiry as fully and finally as I know how. Those under investigation were given the unusual privilege of appearing before the grand jury and explaining their connection with the incident."

Newspapermen Testify
Mitchell, New York lawyer and United States attorney general from 1929 to 1933 under President Hoover, referred to the fact that witnesses before the grand jury included five newspapermen. They were J. Loy Maloney, managing editor of The Tribune; Johnston; Wayne Thomas, Tribune aviation editor who assisted in the preparation of the article; Ralph Sharp, night news editor of the New York Daily News; and Frank Waldrop, foreign and political editor of the Washington Times Herald.

"I am gratified at Mr. Mitchell's announcement of the results of the federal grand jury's investigation of The Chicago Tribune's story of June 7," Maloney said. "I am grateful that the privilege was accorded Stanley Johnston and myself to appear and give the facts. Having done this, there could be but one result."

Johnston, once an Australian citizen who has become an American citizen and who attracted wide notice by his series of stories of the Coral Sea battle, stated:

Johnston Pleaded
"The action of the grand jury is just what I expected it would be. I am prouder than ever before in my life that I call myself an American where freedom still reigns."

"I have known Maloney for nearly twenty-five years, and when I confided The Tribune's honor to him it was with a thorough knowledge of his character," Col. McCormick's statement set forth. Johnston I have only seen a few times, but his record of heroism and the impression he made upon all who came into contact with him furnished a complete guarantee of his integrity."

The investigation was announced Aug. 7 in Washington by Attorney General Francis Biddle. He said he ordered it as a result of a preliminary inquiry and upon the recommendation of the Navy department.

He reported the grand jury would be asked to investigate the possible violation of any criminal statutes, particularly the amended act of March 28, 1940. It prohibits the unlawful communication of documents or information relating to national defense.

At that time Robert W. Horton, head of the news bureau of the Office of War Information, said The Tribune, News and Times Herald had printed the story listing the makeup of the Japanese force near Midway and stating the strength of the Japanese units was known in advance in American circles.

Americans in Action
Important in the Allied air action was the work of twenty-four American Flying Fortresses, which, at the start of the Dieppe action, raided the German fighter drome at Abbeville before many planes could leave the ground.

All these fortresses returned home after all but one had dropped their bombs on or near the target. Three were damaged by anti-aircraft fire, and the radio operator of one was the only casualty. He had an injured kneecap.

Runways, fuel dumps and plane dispersal areas were hit.

Abbeville is thirty-eight miles from Dieppe and Rouen, which the fortresses raided Monday is about the same distance from today's scene of operations.

Tonight the first of the Allied wounded were being landed in Britain. There was no immediate disclosure as to their number.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

The nervous Nazis probably feel sure now they can guess where the United Nations' effort to set up a second front will be centered.

The powerful surprise assault on Dieppe was suggestively the fourth recent raid by the Commandos on a stretch of the northern France channel coast only a little more than a hundred miles long.

For months this area directly opposite England has been the target too of nightly air bombing and daylight sweeps. Even while the attack on Dieppe was in progress, American heavy bombers hit at a Nazi air field at nearby Abbeville after having plastered the railway junction of Rouen forty-eight hours earlier.

The Nazis' beliefs are supported of course by obvious military logic, as well as by the direction of preliminary attacks. Dieppe, like the Boulogne-Le Toquet area twenty-five miles from England's Dover coast where the Commandos twice have paid unwelcome calls this year, is suitable as one bridgehead for an invading Allied army.

Near Somme Valley
The ancient port is but a step to the valleys of the Seine and the Somme through which historic drives toward Paris have moved. To the west are the Norman and Breton peninsula which invite pinching-off attempts. Their great ports of Brest and Cherbourg ultimately must serve as Allied bases as they did a quarter-century ago. Immediately across the channel are a string of English port cities from which to dispatch the invading masses.

American Submarine Sinks Jap Warship
WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 (AP)—The navy announced today that an American submarine had sunk a Japanese cruiser or destroyer in the Western Aleutian area.

Prevailing weather conditions, which long have prevented accurate observation of the effect of bombings and surface raids, made it impossible to determine exactly which type of enemy warship had been sent to the bottom.

Since the Japanese landed at Attu and Kiska, they have been almost constantly harassed by American sea and air forces. On Saturday it was announced that a surface raiding force struck on Aug. 8 and 9, and with assistance from the air damaged a destroyer and two cargo vessels and sank a third cargo ship.

The submarine attack reported today brought the total of Japanese ships damaged or destroyed in the Aleutian area to twenty-three.

Losses Heavy
(also called "special service troops") and a force of fighting French—the fighting on their native soil for the first time since the great defeat of 1940.

No parachutists were used. The American Rangers, selected from a flood of volunteers, take their name from Robert Rogers' Rangers, intrepid band of men famed for their courage and endurance in upper New York state, Montreal and the Detroit area during the seven years' war.

Rangers Are Tough
Today's Rangers were toughened for weeks in the United Kingdom under the tutelage of British Commando officers.

They are the first United States army ground forces to go into action in Europe since the first great war.

All day long hundreds of watchers lined the British cliffs along the channel in the vicinity of Newhaven and other ports as endless rallies of fighters shuttled across the water in the bright sunlight.

Gunfire and explosions could be heard plainly on the English side. Newhaven is only sixty-four miles from Dieppe.

Some fighters squadrons made half a dozen sweeps today, pausing only long enough to refuel and rearm. The scenes at airdromes recalled the 1940 battle of Britain, when ground crews worked so fast it was only a few minutes before the planes were back in action again.

Several squadrons of fighters escorted the Flying Fortresses to Abbeville and brought them back without loss of one of the air giants. On Monday the Fortresses bombed Rouen's railway yards and the reason was plain today—Rouen is barely forty miles from Dieppe.

The use of tanks to destroy long-range shore batteries, ammunition dumps and fuel oil depots, the German army defenses of which Nazi propaganda have made so many boasts indicated the Allies were holding a full-scale dress rehearsal of the tactics which eventually will be used on the real second front.

In some quarters it was believed that the German plane losses reported close to one-third of the Luftwaffe's fighter strength in the western occupied zone of Europe and it was considered likely that the Germans would have to move fighters west from other areas, possibly even the Russian front.

Important in the Allied air action was the work of twenty-four American Flying Fortresses, which, at the start of the Dieppe action, raided the German fighter drome at Abbeville before many planes could leave the ground.

All these fortresses returned home after all but one had dropped their bombs on or near the target. Three were damaged by anti-aircraft fire, and the radio operator of one was the only casualty. He had an injured kneecap.

War Department Takes Over Big Boston Factory

Will Operate Machine Business; Several Strikes Threatened

(By The Associated Press)
President Roosevelt exercised his emergency powers for the seventh time yesterday (Wednesday) to order a private industry taken over by the army.

On orders from the White House acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson directed Major Ralph F. Gow of the Boston Ordnance district to take possession of the S. A. Woods Machine Company of South Boston, Mass., and operate it.

"Threat to Production"
Patterson said failure of the firm to comply with a War Labor Board order requiring the inclusion of maintenance of union membership and arbitration clauses in a contract with CIO workers "has created a serious threat to the production of vital war material which it manufactures."

The plant management had asked the board to hold up its order pending a test in the courts, but at the same time gave assurances that it would cooperate with the government if the plant were taken over.

CIO aluminum workers discussed in Pittsburgh a report of their president, Nick A. Zonari, that union members favor a general strike in the industry unless the WLB reconsiders a denial of wage increases.

$1 Daily Wage Denied
The board denied a $1 daily rise on the ground the workers had received more than a fifteen percent increase since Jan. 1, 1941. Zonari said the increase has been eight cents an hour, while the Aluminum Company of America said the rise was twenty-three percent.

In Louisville, Ky., CIO officials said members of the Aluminum Workers Union would remain away from eleven plants of the Reynolds Metal Company until they were granted an election. Joseph D. Cannon, CIO regional director, said four of the plants which make aluminum parts for planes had been shut down.

In the capital, officials of the Hathaway Mills of New Bedford, Mass., working on army contracts, and AFL officials, conferred with federal conciliators in a move to settle a week-old strike. Two hundred spinners asked a readjustment of the work load and a proportionate wage adjustment. Their strike threw 600 others out of work and 1,200 other employees threaten to walk out unless union demands are met.

Trouble at Akron
In Akron, O., 100 strikers at the army truck tire department of the General Tire and Rubber Company defied their CIO leaders, expressing dissatisfaction with undisclosed piece-work rates. Production slowed.

The War Production Board invited officials of 18 AFL and CIO metal fabricating unions to a conference in the capital Monday to discuss raw material shortages.

Wendell Lund, director of the board's labor production division, said the conference would examine problems "faced by the unions and the nation as a result of material shortages and to canvass the means by which such shortages can be reduced and their impact eased."

Kaiser Wants
three yards in and near Portland sent a plea to United States employment offices throughout the country: "Please send us young, strong, untrained single women. We need them to help us help win the war."

There's a definite connection between Susie and the new record. "Our labor force would have been inadequate these past months without the use of women," Albert Bauer, assistant general manager of the Oregon Shipbuilding Corp., told newspaper correspondents today.

"We are using 300 women in actual construction, chiefly as welders and electricians, and we want to multiply that number as fast as we can get and train more girls."

More Workers Needed
The yards must vastly increase their present labor force of around 50,000 to keep up with ever-growing government demands.

The biggest employment problem, according to Bauer, is housing, which explains the effort to find single men and women workers, rather than workers with families.

Typical of women welders is seventeen year old Evelyn Dishman. We interrupted her work to ask her, "do you like this job?"

She pushed her welder's helmet back on her head, wiped the sweat from her very dirty face with a very dirty glove, and grinned, "I'm crazy about it. It took a war to give me a good break like this."

Miss Dishman used to work in a suitcase factory at $15 a week. Now, after a two-weeks' training course, she earns $120 an hour, which, with overtime, amounts to $62.40 a week.

She is saving her money and so is her boy friend, Bernard Crawford, age 18, employed in another Kaiser yard at $84 a week. They're both buying bonds, they're both going to night school and they both think this is a wonderful country.

Vaccination Will Prevent Contagious Diseases in Childhood, Doctor Says

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Your child can be protected by immunization against the following diseases and should be vaccinated at the age indicated:

Whooping cough—six months.
 Smallpox—nine months.
 Diphtheria—twelve months, with Schick test at six years to determine if revaccination is necessary.

Scarlet fever—three to four years.
 Typhoid fever—eight to 12 years.
 This is a right up-to-date list published in 1941 by Dr. John A. Kolmer, professor of medicine at Temple University, Philadelphia. In short, it is conservative, authoritative and squares with the latest knowledge.

In the article yesterday, I said that the greatest danger of infancy and childhood was the series of contagions each individual must pass through. This danger is greatly increased as soon as the child enters school because there so many new human contacts are made, carriers of germs from other households. Against many of these, some of the worst medical science can furnish immunity by vaccination. It is the greatest boon medical science has to offer humanity.

Let us review the list. Whooping cough is today the greatest baby-killer on earth. This honor used to be reserved for diphtheria, but since the universal vaccination against diphtheria in children of preschool and school age began about twenty years ago, diphtheria is a rare disease.

Scarlet fever has become so mild, for some reason nobody understands, that the death rate in the whole population is today one to 100 of what it was "fifty years ago. This is not due to wide vaccination against scarlet fever, but seems to be a natural example of ebb and flow. Scarlet fever may be a disappearing disease, or it may be due for an increase in virulence.

At any rate, that leaves whooping cough and measles as the chief killers and whooping cough is a far more dangerous disease than measles. For measles there is no known method of vaccination or prevention, so perhaps the best thing is to let the growing child have an attack and get it over with. Whooping cough does damage by its complications—pneumonia and the after-effects on the central nervous system, leading to speech disorders, tardy and incoordinated walking and mental tardiness.

Prevention of whooping cough is possible with the Sauer vaccine. It must be given early in life because whooping cough is a disease of infancy. No bad results have been reported from its use.

The vaccine is given in three doses hypodermically at intervals of one to three weeks. The immunity lasts five to eight years, which covers the period of greatest susceptibility. There are about 10 to 15 per cent failures, but the disease is so fraught with danger that these should be risked.

Questions and Answers
 W. T. G.—Will X-ray show ulcers or cancer of the pancreas or liver?
 Answer: For all practical purposes

I think we can answer No. In the rare case of obstruction of the bile ducts from cancer of the head of the pancreas the x-ray shows a dilated gallbladder.

Maryland Casualty Company To Expand Capital Structure

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19 (AP)—Stewart McDonald, chairman of the board and president of the Maryland Casualty Company, has announced the proposed expansion of the capital structure of the company by the addition of $12,500,000 in capital and surplus funds.

The development of the company's business this year, McDonald said, have made the financing feasible. If the first six months rate of premium volume is maintained, he added, this year's business would exceed that of any previous year in the company's history.

"The financing will make practicable the acquisition or formation of a fire and marine insurance affiliate, a plan which the management has felt for some time to be desirable," McDonald said.

Income Tax Reductions Would Not Be a Gift

WHILE Governor O'Connor has pleased taxpayers with his recommendation that the excessive state income taxes be reduced by twenty to twenty-five per cent, which is a partial step in the right direction, none of them should be deluded with the notion that this is something in the nature of a gift, nor an evidence of extraordinary wise fiscal management. It would be merely returning to the people only in part something wrongfully taken from them.

This much has been made plain by the letter written to the governor by Harry S. Mittendorf, of Baltimore, president of the Maryland Public Expenditure Council, following the governor's announcement containing his recommendation, which came as a sort of bombshell into the camp of the state administrationists who had been frantically planning how they could and should spend the surplus rolled up in state funds.

Mittendorf noted that, since the surplus came from the people, and since they were charged more than was necessary to run the state government, the overcharge, amounting to as much as the entire estimated income tax receipts of the state this year, should be returned whence it was taken.

The return should be made by cutting either the income and other tax rates, by cutting the state debt, or by both, in the studied opinion of the council head. He leaves the selection of where rate reductions are to be made to the governor; but he urges that the entire $9,000,000 surplus be returned to the taxpayers except for a small working fund. He is dead right about that.

The taxpayer leader is also right about the plan projected for freezing the state surplus for post-war reconstruction, holding that we should cross our bridges when we come to them and noting that we have an important bridge before us right now.

"The idea of freezing the surplus or a portion of it might have merit," Mittendorf stated, "if it would stay frozen or if the taxpayer were not carrying such a terrific load now. Taxpayers must pay for arming the world, for maintaining vast forces of fighting men, as well as an army of 2,000,000 federal employees. Can they at this time pay in advance for post-war reconstruction even before they know what post-war conditions will be? The fate of the world depends in large part on the continued ability of taxpayers to pay the cost of maintaining our fight for freedom. They need every available dollar for this job and the state's surplus represents taxpayer dollars which should be returned so they will be available for war taxes. Let the taxpayer pay for the war first and after victory he will pay for reconstruction."

That makes sense, indeed.

Two Conjectures About Malta

RECENT ACTION in the Mediterranean has been of such magnitude as to suggest two conclusions. Either the Allies were faced with a renewal of Rommel's push eastward of sufficient strength to make necessary the risking of a sizable convoy to bolster Auchinleck's Eighth army, or the Allies have assembled such shipping and weapons as to make desirable a luring into battle of Axis units in the Mediterranean so that this major threat could be removed to a shift in Allied strategy in both Africa and the Near East.

The Germans say that the Allied convoy was a large one and that it was well protected by a number of warships and aircraft. It has reached Malta, in mid-Mediterranean, after receiving support from the intrepid fighter plane squadron based at Malta. By attempting to run the Axis blockade in the Mediterranean the Allies were trying to save many weeks of extended shipping around South Africa. If the move was also a bait to lure German and Italian planes and submarines into battle, then the resultant Allied loss, no matter how considerable, would be balanced by a further decimating of the waning Axis submarine pool.

Recent events around Malta tipped off the sending of considerable reinforcements to Rommel. No matter how much the State department at Washington attempts to ignore it, French shipping and French ports in North Africa were utilized, in part. If the familiar pincer operation of the Germans is to be effective, then Rommel must get on the move again.

The principal three islands that comprise Malta are only ninety-five square miles in rocky area. In the short period of fourteen days last month more than 200 German planes were shot down over Malta. Sir Hugh Lloyd, the British air vice admiral in charge of the RAF at Malta, for two years one of the biggest obstacles to an easy German success in Egypt, has just arrived in London. He pictures Malta as an actual starting base for an invasion of Italy. In any event, Malta is the alarm bell for much of the war's most important fighting.

Fire-Fighting Plans A War Necessity

OLIVER LYTTELTON, Britain's minister of production, proved a good forecaster when he said a few days ago that "the next eighty days will be the gravest in our [Britain's] history." And he was telling the grim truth when he followed this a day later with the statement that the symphony of war is rising to a crescendo. He predicted that the next two months will see a terrible increase in the intensity of the struggle.

The American civilian is likely to ask himself whether under such circumstances the mainland of the United States will itself feel the stern reality of war through a shower of bombs. The moves of the Axis are not predictable, but with American planes and American pilots participating in aerial activity against the Axis powers on land and sea, it is not improbable that Hitler or Tokyo might order raids on the cities of this country, if they could find a way of getting their bombers to this side of the oceans.

American cities are constructed largely of wood and the peril of vast numbers of incendiary bombs is ever existent. It behooves Americans, especially those living near the coasts, to learn all they can about fighting these missiles. American fire departments were not designed for fighting hundreds of fires simultaneously. They must depend upon citizen aid to combat incendiary bombs.

Home owners should be in the forefront of those who enlist in this service. They have a direct stake in the matter as well as a community responsibility.

War Work Opportunities For Mrs. America

A CERTAIN GLAMOR attaches to the career of the WAACs and the WAVES, and there is no doubt regret in the hearts of many a good American housewife or business girl that circumstances prevent her becoming a member.

But even if Mrs. America can not go into uniform or get into the production line for the all-out war effort in industry, there are other ways in which she may help. The survey made by the General Federation of Women's Clubs of the 2,500,000 members of its 16,500 clubs shows that they have been taking advantage of those other opportunities.

Activities revealed by the survey show that American women are selling and buying bonds, raising gardens or chickens, responding to Red Cross calls, working on farms, raising money to buy bombers, furnishing recreation halls and baking cookies for soldiers, operating canteens and acting as hostesses.

There probably will be other ways which Mrs. America will discover in which she can aid the war effort. American ingenuity is just as strong in the everyday business of homemaking as in the field of science and invention. And this ingenuity is given new impetus by the American woman's desire to go all out for her men in the armed forces.

For the fourth time in eight months the Japs announce they've sunk the American navy, but again fail to explain how come they have so much trouble with its ghost.

Berlin complains bitterly of the "mental front" Norwegians have raised against the New Order. Mental, eh? Sounds like another headache for the Nazis.

Little Girl

By MARSHALL MASLIN

She was only six years old but she wondered about life quite a little. She wondered how water could go up in pipes, what made automobiles go, and once she asked her father if the days would ever come to an end—if there would ever be a time when there wouldn't be any days at all. Her father couldn't answer the question. He said: "Perhaps." And she seemed to be satisfied with his ignorance.

She was fond of dolls but she liked dogs better. She liked to drive nails into boards and to saw them across. She thought boys more fun than girls. "Nobody ever told her that," she said. It was her own idea. She could read but she's rather pile up blocks. . . . She had fun.

Sometimes she sat quietly by herself and then asked an odd question. You asked why she asked that particular question and she replied: "Oh, I was just thinking. I guess." . . . She didn't know why she asked them.

She couldn't stand physical pain very well. She went very white if she had a bad fall and wanted to go to bed and have bread and milk. But she didn't like puppies or kittens to be hurt, either. . . . She listened one day to the story of an Irish wolfhound that killed a cat and then she said: "I don't want to hear about that—because I like kittens." She could turn a handspike quite well and was proud of it. . . . And would show you if you asked her. . . . But she couldn't turn a cartwheel, and she'd tried and tried and tried.

The little girl could touch the tip of her nose with her tongue but she was sort of ashamed of it. On the other hand she could wiggle her ears and would do that for anybody. . . . She believed in Santa Claus and was sure the Easter Bunny left candy eggs in the front yard once a year. . . . She thought she knew how to dance the sailor's hornpipe and she danced by herself when alone in a room with the radio turned on. . . . If you came into the room, she stopped. . . . She didn't always say thank you when people gave her things but after they had gone she said she "just loved" them.

She was just a regular little girl getting a day older every day. . . . Sometimes she seemed older than her years and sometimes she seemed a mere baby. What on earth will become of her when she's grown up? . . . But doesn't somebody wonder that about nearly every little girl that's only six years old?

Letter Answered By Paul Mallon Goes to the FBI

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Dear Mr. —, Cincinnati, Ohio:

I am omitting the use of your name in publishing this reply to your letter, because I do not believe you can really feel about our government and our war cause in the way you have written me.

When you think it over honestly with yourself, I know you will change your mind, especially as you say you have a boy in service.

But you have given expression to many of the foolish absurdities that are being passed around conversationally among some people in this country who are either too busy or careless to reason out truth for themselves.

You say:

"The conduct of the British in India and the silence of our State department proves we are not in a war for 'four freedoms.' We have been hoaxed into allowing our boys to be sent to all parts of the world and into buying war bonds. I buy no more bonds — and if my boy does not come back whole someone is going to pay."

If you buy no bonds, you may be sure your boy will not come back whole. This government will then not have the money to furnish him with the weapons necessary to make him equal to our enemies, or to supply him with good food and good medical care to keep him well. You can see that.

Responsibility Personal

And if he does not come back whole, you will be the one who is responsible, not the officials of this government, for whatever are their proficiencies or inadequacies in leadership, the responsibility of furnishing the money to supply your boy properly lies, not with them, but with you.

That's your end of the war. If you do not hold it up by buying every war bond you can, you are only punishing your own son and the millions like him in the service. Independence for India? Everybody wants independence for India. Even the most empirical Britisher now wishes it had been worked out before this war started.

But the question now is to win this war. Nothing else matters. Don't get the war mixed up with complex Indian politics, or like the Indian politicians, you will never know where you are going. Keep one point clear:

Victory the Answer

If you want independence for India, they way to get it is to win this war. If we do not win it, what you want or what India wants, will be immaterial. Hitler and the Japanese imperialists will decide. You ask:

"What difference is it to the common man, whether we win or lose? This war is for the world federation of states (League of Nations) under a nom de plume in which the ruling classes will have us and the rest of the world in the same state as India and China. They are recapturing the British empire for the international bankers."

We have been attacked—treacherously attacked. Have you forgotten so soon? We are fighting, not for the British empire, but for our own lives.

We are fighting for your job, your son, and his son, your family, and everything this country means, including your right to write letters expressing your views, even if they be as ill-founded and despairing as those you have expressed to me.

Desperate Fight for Survival Is Viewed As Precluding Indian Settlement Now

By MARK SULLIVAN

They are trying to leave the baby on President Roosevelt's doorstep—"they" being some leaders of Mohandas Gandhi's party in India, and some excited Americans. So far, President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hull seem not inclined to adopt the brattish problem. They prudently realize that if they take this baby in, several more will clamor for adoption. There are in the world a lot of unwanted babies of this kind.

The very serious facts of the Indian problem, briefly, are: For a long time Gandhi and fellow leaders have demanded independence for India. Last April, British announced willingness to grant independence—but said that for the better conduct of defense against the Japanese, it was preferable that Britain remain in control until the end of the war. But Gandhi and his fellow leaders were not willing to wait. They in pursuit of immediate independence, threatened a campaign of what they called non-violent civil disobedience. Thereupon Britain put Gandhi in jail. Some disorder arose, which Britain has repressed by force.

It was in this form that the problem came to the attention of most Americans—only a few among us knew the deep complexities behind it. To most of America, it seemed a simple problem of India wanting independence, and Britain delaying it. Some Americans, thinking the problem really was that simple, saw a violation of the "four freedoms" and the Atlantic Charter—in which Mr. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill said that all peoples who wanted freedom should have it.

Another Factor

Recently, however, America has become aware of another factor in the situation. Another Indian leader spoke up, Mohammed Jinnah, Jinnah is a Moslem, while Gandhi is a Hindu. Jinnah said that he, and the many millions of Moslems he speaks for, would object to Britain making any agreement with Gandhi which might threaten the minority rights of the Moslems. This is what has troubled Britain all along. Not only would it be unwise and dangerous to offend the Moslems in India. There are, besides, millions of Moslems outside India, whose friendliness is important to Britain and the other United Nations, and who might be alienated by concessions Britain might make to Gandhi. And this Hindu-Moslem complex is but one of several intricacies which make the Indian problem very large and very difficult. Britain has lived with it a long time—it is not likely that either she, or our common interest in winning the war, would be helped by our intruding into the Indian situation.

Should Get a Flag

If I were you, I would buy an American flag, as a symbol of your hope that this nation shall not be plunged by defeat into such misery as it never has seen.

Also turn off that radio from Dr. Goebbels and sign your real name and identifying address to your letters to columnists. I have looked you up in the Cincinnati telephone and city directories and find no name like yours, which—coupled with your arguments—is a pretty fair indication you are a fake, an enemy of this country, have no son in the service, and at least should do some explaining about where you get your defeatist opinions.

I am now turning your letter over to the FBI.

Yours sincerely,
PAUL MALLON.

Morning Motto

Without health life is not life; it is not living life. Without health life is only a state of languor and an image of death.—HABLAIS.

One demand on our government that came from some Americans had to do with American troops who are now in India in order to help China or for other war purposes. The demand was that American troops should not help the British put down Indian uprisings. This step our government has taken, upon the sound principle that

No American Interference

Unless something entirely unforeseen occurs between now and November to change or divert public opinion, one of the greatest off-year political turnovers in the history of the country will occur.

This is an encouraging prospect from a Republican standpoint, but of a great deal more importance from a public standpoint. The government of the United States needs nothing so badly at the moment as a substantially increased Republican representation in Congress.

Second Front a Big Secret but Is Accepted as Fact

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Joseph Stalin would appear to be far more concerned with the cementing of relations between Russia and Britain and the whole cause of the United Nations than with the immediate opening of a second front.

It didn't need a visit by the British prime minister to assure the head of the Russian government that a second front would be opened. Nor did it need any explanation of how the second front would be operated for the very good reason that the strategy Winston Churchill of such a move will depend on circumstances as they arise.

That there is to be a second front may be accepted as a fact. The president of the United States announced this plan after the recent visit of Foreign Commissar Molotov. The only open questions have been when the front would be opened, where it would be opened and how it would be opened. These are military matters dependent for their solution on questions of shipping, of transport and of synchronization of effort as between the British and American armies and air forces.

Three Inferences

Mr. Stalin doubtless knew all this before Mr. Churchill came and has known it for some time. Then why did Mr. Churchill go to Moscow at this time? The plain inference is that the visit was decided upon as a means, first, of quieting the public clamor in Britain for a second front, second as a consequence of the rather ambiguous statement issued when Mr. Molotov was here, and, finally, to demonstrate to Latin America and to the peoples of the occupied countries in Europe as well as to the peoples of the United Nations that even though the fortunes of battle seem to be going against Russia, there is no thought of a capitulation or of a separate peace.

If the tides of war finally go against Stalin this summer in Russia, it merely means that the whole war will be prolonged. As for the steady stream of supplies to Russia, they will be maintained and it is quite possible that one of the collateral reasons for the Churchill-Stalin conference was to determine on alternative routes of supply if anything happens to the gateways. The Persian gulf or in the event that Japan decides to make war in Siberian ports and waters.

No Propaganda Journey

Mr. Churchill doesn't make hazardous visits over enemy patrolled areas by plane for propaganda purposes alone. Since he and President Roosevelt formulate the master strategy for this war, it can be inferred that certain decisions have to be made in advance to protect Russia and Britain against various contingencies that might arise in the event of a Japanese-Russian war. Then there is also the possibility of intensified operations in the Near East this winter either with or without Turkey's co-operation. The heads of the two governments would naturally canvass every possibility in a personal conference because visits like these cannot be undertaken often during the critical periods of a war.

Apparently the British prime minister is anxious to make it clear that the reverses which Russia has suffered in the Caucasus while damaging are not catastrophic and that the Russian-British-Chinese-American unity for war purposes is not going to be broken because of what the Axis may accomplish this summer.

Discussion Clue

As for a second front, the public as well as Nazi observers could very well guess that, if a second front had been imminent all during the summer, the discussions in the press of the United Nations would not have been so extensive. In fact, for a while, these discussions seem to have been officially encouraged in London, possibly in the hope that Hitler would immobilize certain troop divisions in Western Europe which would have been as effective in part for diversion purposes as an actual attack on French occupied territory.

The Nazis have excellent reconnaissance and it is doubtful whether they will be surprised by any second front operations. What they may not know is the time when such an event will begin or the successive steps thereafter. Thus enlarged Commando raids with several thousands of men landed at widely separated points might be one method as distinguished from the making of a bridgehead by air power through which all forces would be landed.

Secret Well Kept

Nobody who is in the know about the second front has disclosed a single iota of information. It is, as it should be, a well kept secret but the broad plan for such a front is no secret and the mobilization of men and materials, ships and planes for the big push in whatever form it will be made is under way now.

That the Germans know it can be judged from the preparations they are taking to prevent civilian populations inside France or Norway from coming to the assistance of the invading armies.

the ways of other lands. For it is the military policy of the United States to interfere as little as is possible with the civil administration of occupied territory and to give first attention to supervising the executive and judicial officials of cities, provinces, states or countries into which they follow the armed forces.

They must be prepared to set up civil administration as soon as possible after fighting ceases. The manual they will carry provides for approval form of a declaration of occupation, and a set of typical ordinances which the officer must be prepared to vary according to the mentality, laws and customs of the people of the occupied territory. The manual sets down terms under which soldiers may be billeted, the organization of military tribunals, and even the maximum punishments for a long list of military and civil offenses.

Wide World Features

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—A group of 50 high-ranking Army officers is winding up an intensive course of study in military government to prepare them to go into foreign lands with the armed forces of the United States and to set up and direct local, regional and even national governments in occupied territory. No Army school in the nation is attended by officers of higher rank, and no group of service men have been more carefully selected for special training and experience to qualify them for the important task of maintaining the governmental authority of the United States on foreign soil.

Their is strictly a wartime duty. They will move in close behind the fighting front to keep in running order many of the services of civilian government, the maintenance of law and public utilities, until the coming of peace makes it possible to turn the occupied territory back to its own people.

These officers come from 30 states and their ages range from 30 years to past 60. Some are West Point graduates, others held commissions in the Army Reserve while not a few saw service during World War I. One is the lieutenant-governor of a southern state while another directed a state sales tax administration in the west. There are judges from New York, Tennessee, and other states. One was a newspaper correspondent in Berlin before World War I broke out, another headed an engineering and construction company, while another managed a chain of stores. The group includes city managers, sanitation experts, utility or public service engineers, lawyers, and men from other professions.

Courses of Study
They began their studies in May with the basic rules of military government. They studied the organization and operation of the War Department and of the Army and became familiar with official correspondence and military paper work.

Then they were ready for their study of the general principles of public administration and of the specific details of public finance, public health and sanitation, communications, utilities and public works, education, public safety, public welfare, and local and state economic problems.

Military Policy
They are learning much about graphy, and to the study of geopolitics. The courses will be concluded with a study of liaison functions. There'll be exercises of graduation about the end of August.

The School of Military Government has been organized by the War Department under supervision of the Provost Marshal General, Major General Allen W. Gullion, who after a brilliant career as the Judge Advocate of the Army, was appointed to his present position.

Command of the school is under Brigadier General Cornelius W. Wickersham, son of former United States Attorney General George W. Wickersham, and a distinguished attorney and soldier in his own right. For service during the first World War he was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal and the French Legion of Honor.

Student officers are kept at their studies morning, afternoon and evening by members of a permanent faculty and a staff of visiting lecturers.

As the Army officers assemble for their classes in front of Clark Hall and as they leave at the end of the day they can look across the houses of Charlottesville to Monticello, mountain top home of Thomas Jefferson, father of the University of Virginia, who labored so earnestly in the founding of the nation and in the enlarging of its borders. A portrait of Woodrow Wilson looks down from one classroom wall, while in their studies they make much use of a book collection named in honor of another son of the University of Virginia, John Bassett Moore, first United States justice on the International Court at the Hague.

Mark's Wife

by MARIE BLIZARD

SYNOPSIS
BARBARA WISTER, former actress, finds herself a widow at 27, when her husband dies. Her only friend in the small town of South Wintride, where she lives, is
DR. TONY BRADSHAW, a young physician. Owner of the town's only big business is TOM KILCRAN, whose daughter, PAMELA, and wife, CLAUDE, are haughty, cold and selfish.

CHAPTER TWELVE
TOM KILCRAN ran his fingers through his thick hair and looked extremely worried. "You know, Pamela, there are lots of girls and boys here who have a good time. Maybe we could cook up..."

"Look, sweetie," she said affectionately, "you're not to worry about anything, mostly me. I'll find plenty to do. Only I'm used to playgrounds and lots of people around and I sort of miss them. That's Claire's fault, I guess. She does provide an exciting background."

"You mustn't blame your mother. She was meant for good times. She never should have married a plain businessman like me. I often blame myself..."

Half-angrily, his daughter retorted, "Don't talk nonsense, Father. The trouble with you two is that you never got together, really. You should have put your foot down and stopped her..."

But you didn't, so if she... if I... or we... ever do anything you don't understand or feel like forgiving, I hope you'll be lenient."

Tom felt that his daughter was trying to convey something that her words did not. He said, "What do you mean, Pamela?"

She flicked a lighter on, held it to the tip of her cigarette and dismissed his question with a shrug. "You haven't told me who the young man in the thunder-cloud was?"

"Bradshaw, Dr. Bradshaw." Pamela put down the lighter and forgot her cigarette. "Tony Bradshaw? The one who used to play football?"

"That's the one. Know him?" "I never met him. I was in pines when he was the high school hero..."

And to think that when I finally meet him all he has to say is 'sorry'. What was the rumpus about? I could hear your voices as I came up the stairs."

"He thinks I ought to build a hospital for the town, that's all. Anything you'd like today, like a million dollars?"

"Why don't you?" she asked coolly, ignoring his sarcasm. "If he wants one, I'm sure we ought to have one. We could have it named after us."

"A hundred and fifty thousand dollars to have KILCRAN chiseled in marble over a door?" Pamela snapped her fingers. "A drop in the bucket. Let's have him up to the house and talk it over. I love earnest young fellows."

"You stay out of this, miss. I've enough expenses, trying to keep everybody on the payroll now."

"Realization," his daughter told him. "You know the war in Europe is going to shoot the woolen business sky high. Next time he comes around tell him my shell-like ear is available if he'd like to talk to me about it."

"I'm warning you to keep out of it. You leave him alone. He's got a lot of work to do. He's no play-boy."

"You never can tell..." "If you can wait half an hour, you can drive me home to lunch."

Pamela went around the desk and kissed him. "I'll run along to the post-office and pick you up at one."

"If it stamps you want..." She shook her head and hurried out before he had a chance to ask her any further questions. She had very private business at the post-office, of which she didn't want her family to be aware.

She hoped the clerk would not be a stranger. He wasn't. She said, "Mr. Hunneker, I want to rent a box. If any mail comes for a Miss Betty Brown, will you keep it there for me and send it up to the house?"

... You see... er... Miss Brown used to be a maid for us... and... well, I'll take care of her mail."

"Betty Brown, you say?" "Seems like there's a couple of letters in the general delivery for her right now."

He brought her three letters with Mexican postmarks and boldly scrawled addresses on the thin paper envelopes. She looked at them hastily and thrust them into her pocketbook and turned away from the window to hear Hunneker say, "Morning, Miss Bradshaw."

Bradshaw, Pamela stole a glance at the woman who had come in, remembering that Tony Bradshaw lived with a maiden aunt. She stole another glance at the middle-aged figure in uncomplaining black and decided that she certainly was someone's maiden aunt. Then, as if suddenly remembering, recognition came into her face and she turned, smiling sweetly and held out her hand, saying, "How do you do, Miss Bradshaw?"

"Don't you remember me? I'm Pamela KILCRAN." Miss Bradshaw took her hand awkwardly, unaccustomed to formal gesture at informal moments, and said primly, "How do you do."

Pamela ignored the unenthusiastic beginning. "I just bumped into your nephew leaving Father's office. I guess he didn't remember me."

There was a door marked IN and a door marked OUT in front of her. The OUT door hadn't worked since she could remember. Now as she pulled the other toward her, Barbara Wister stood before her on the steps.

They said good morning to each other briefly and then impulsively the younger woman said, "Miss Bradshaw... You're just the person I wanted to meet. I wonder if you would give me some advice?"

"I will if I can," Miss Bradshaw answered, not ungraciously, noting that, unlike the KILCRAN girl, Mrs. Wister did not have painted fingernails.

"I'm going to open a circulating library and I want to send out post-cards to announce it. I wondered if you could tell me where I could get a list of townpeople who would like to know about it."

"Miss Davidson would know better. She writes the personals for the Clarion."

"Thank you." "Don't thank me. Haven't done anything... How's your little boy?"

Barbara's face lighted instantly. "Oh, he's splendid, thank you. He's such a healthy little boy."

"Glad to hear it," Miss Bradshaw said briefly and nodded abruptly, terminating the exchange.

"Didn't know he knew you," said die Bradshaw said. "I know he didn't remember me... I... Father's been telling me wonderful things about him."

"Has he? Miss Bradshaw asked in a tone that showed neither pleasure or surprise.

Pamela nodded. "Yes. He says he's a very ambitious young man."

"He's doing very well."

"I'm sure he is! I'd love to hear about it... Does he play bridge?"

"Guess he does, but he doesn't have much time for parties."

Pamela gave her an understanding, woman-to-woman smile. "All work and no play is bad for a young man, isn't it? It would be nice if he could come to Stormwald some evening to dinner and a little bridge. Will you tell him? I'd like to renew an old acquaintance."

Miss Addie said, "I'll tell him," in tones that indicated she expected nothing would come of it.

"It's nice to see you again..." Well, goodbye. Tell Tony to ring me up. Any evening will be all right."

She debated offering her hand again, decided against it and went off.

Miss Addie looked after her departing figure with a wintry glance that plainly expressed her disapproval of the girl's boldness. The meeting had driven her errand out of her mind and trying to recall it, she remembered that her nephew was waiting to drive her home.

There was a door marked IN and a door marked OUT in front of her. The OUT door hadn't worked since she could remember. Now as she pulled the other toward her, Barbara Wister stood before her on the steps.

They said good morning to each other briefly and then impulsively the younger woman said, "Miss Bradshaw... You're just the person I wanted to meet. I wonder if you would give me some advice?"

"I will if I can," Miss Bradshaw answered, not ungraciously, noting that, unlike the KILCRAN girl, Mrs. Wister did not have painted fingernails.

"I'm going to open a circulating library and I want to send out post-cards to announce it. I wondered if you could tell me where I could get a list of townpeople who would like to know about it."

"Miss Davidson would know better. She writes the personals for the Clarion."

"Thank you." "Don't thank me. Haven't done anything... How's your little boy?"

Barbara's face lighted instantly. "Oh, he's splendid, thank you. He's such a healthy little boy."

"Glad to hear it," Miss Bradshaw said briefly and nodded abruptly, terminating the exchange.

Md. Legislators Not Eligible for Draft This Year

Local Boards Hold They Cannot Be Inducted into Service

BALTIMORE, Aug. 19 (AP) — The Evening Sun said today some local draft boards in Maryland are interpreting the Selective Service act to mean that Maryland legislators elected in 1938 would not be eligible for the draft until next year.

"Although the legislature elected in 1938 held its last session nearly a year and a half ago and is unlikely ever to meet again, some of its members are still exempt from military duty because of their political position and will remain immune to the draft until next year," the paper said.

Four Year Exemption "Under this interpretation," it continued, "men otherwise eligible for military duty who are elected to the general assembly in November will be exempt for the next four years."

At least two local boards, the Sun said, have granted automatic exemptions to all legislators on their rolls while others have granted deferment only to those who specifically asked for it.

Col. Henry C. Stanwood, Maryland Selective Service head, declined to comment on the story saying he had not yet read it, but added that under the law it was mandatory for boards to give legislators deferment.

Favors Deferment The local board should give deferment to all legislators whether they waive the right or not," Col. Stanwood said.

Two boards named by The Evening Sun to have granted automatic exemptions to legislators were Baltimore City Local Board No. 2 and Baltimore County local Board No. 3 at Towson.

"A number of draft boards, however," The Evening Sun continued, "listed the legislators in other categories such as 3-A, without regard to the political position claimed."

Reach Agreement

has been in effect in one Baltimore plant for quite some time.

O'Connor stressed that today's developments "are only tentative." The full text of the plan was not disclosed, he said, because its publication might "impede and obstruct" the effort to obtain sanction of the national labor leaders.

It was explained the plan, if put into effect, also would not jeopardize "union control" of a shop or plant regardless of the number of AFL or CIO members transferred from non-essential jobs.

"In fact," Liveright remarked, "management's interests in the welfare of employees they must offer to the war industry should be appeased, I feel, by such a plan. Few employers, I daresay, would agree to job transfers if they thought for a moment that opposite union allegiances, which might be encountered, would precipitate serious labor controversies."

Katz Praises Plan Sidney R. Katz, CIO member of the LVB, declared, "our first thought during the war is defense production. All of us want harmony and we feel this plan should work not only in Maryland but nationally as well."

Frank N. Kershaw, AFL member of the LVB, said, "this necessity of manpower should not occasion labor unrest and our proposal today is a step toward lowering all barriers to cooperation between rival labor factions and labor and management during the emergency."

In other phases of the meeting, the LVB advised Liveright that a marked increase in the number of negro employees in defense work had been reported recently. Liveright further urged the board to continue its efforts in this direction while O'Connor said, "labor leaders feel negroes are responding patriotically to the situation and tell me they hope to be given an outstanding part in the defense program."

Woman recruiting problems also were considered but Liveright and O'Connor reported that the only definite step which could be disclosed was a decision that no large scale "registration" of women would be held in Maryland for "at least some time."

Liveright explained that recruiting centers soon would be established throughout the state and that women would be asked to volunteer for defense work at the present time.

900 tons average monthly deliveries from August to December inclusive. This monthly average will have to hit more than 1,000,000 tons to accomplish the new schedule.

The July output was the third successive record-shattering month, and for the first time since early spring found east coast yards bettering the output of the Pacific's big new shipbuilding plants.

Henry J. Kaiser, pace-setter for the west coast, got new recognition from the Maritime commission today for outstanding ship production. Kaiser's Portland, Ore., plant, the Oregon Shipbuilding Corporation, received its third merit award. The yard received the first of the commission's "M" pennants in April, got a second gold star for the pennant in July, and the new star for continued speed in production.

rived and another large contingent of Commandos, carrying rifles and wearing deflated life preservers, marched to the trucks and were driven away with motorcycle escort.

One of them, a young French-Canadian, proudly waved a field-grey tunic.

"What happened to the owner?" called a soldier from the curb. "I finished him," the Commando replied.

A second commando who had been on three previous raids said grimly: "This was the hottest I've been in."

Class in Fire And Gas Defense Opens Friday Night

A class in fire and gas defense will be started Friday night at 7:30 o'clock by Chief R. J. Snyder of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company.

The class will continue for three successive Fridays. It is the last such class which will be organized in the LaVale area.

Five older men who are members of the company but who have not taken an active part in the actual fire-fighting work have begun drills to fit them for duty in place of younger men who have been called for army service. These drills will be held each Monday night throughout the fall months.

Two More Men Sign Up for Elks Lodge "Refresher Course"

Morgan S. Riley, 21, of Piedmont, W. Va., and John J. Dick, Westernport, registered yesterday for the fourth class being organized under sponsorship of the Cumberland and Frostburg Elks lodges for the United States Army Air Cadet "refresher courses."

Riley is manager of the A. and P. market in Lonaconing while Dick manages the American Store in the same town. Other interested persons may register any night this week from 7:30 until 9 o'clock at either the Cumberland or Frostburg lodges.

Kiwanis Club Will Meet at Camp The Cumberland Kiwanis Club will meet this evening at 6 o'clock at the Sunshine Camp with the 1942 edition of the Sunshine Camp Follies comprising the program.

TODAY'S VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

SELECTING FRUIT TREES

When buying young fruit trees to be planted this fall there are certain factors to watch for. First of all, the tree should have a good root system. Secondly, a well-developed trunk is important. The head or

"Work, Fight or Go to Jail" Order Brings Arrest of 15 Men at Berlin

BERLIN, Md., Aug. 19. (AP)—State Attorney William G. Kerbin carried Worcester county's "work, fight or go to jail" campaign into the Berlin section yesterday and arrested fifteen persons.

As depicted in the Garden-Graph when planting is done in the fall the tree should not be pruned back as with spring planting. The only pruning which should be attempted is of broken or scraped branches. This frequently happens during digging, moving or replanting.

Cut any injured branch just below the injury but not close to the tree's trunk for the object is to allow the tree to winter over without any wounds or as small wounds as possible.

Over a million poultry brooders were made in U. S. factories during the last five years covered by Census Bureau reports.

Kerbin said visits were also made to Whaleyville, Snow Hill and Stockton but that no arrests were made in those sections.

Kerbin ordered officers to apprehend persons not having their selective service cards on their persons, and said "It is highly probable that among the hundreds of migrant laborers in Worcester county, quite a few have to date escaped the watchful eye of Uncle Sam."

Kerbin issued instructions to every officer in Worcester county to begin a check-up at once on all persons, to find out if they are registered for military duty.

"Some may say they left their draft card at home," Kerbin told the officers. "If they tell you that, go to their home with them and make them show it to you. This is wartime and no man should be permitted to escape his duty under the selective service act."

American Bags Nazi Focke-Wulf

LONDON, Aug. 19. (AP)—A Californian flying a United States-built Mustang fighter (North American P-51) shot down a German Focke-Wulf 190 fighter during a sweep over Dieppe, the British ministry of information said tonight.

The pilot was Flying Officer H. H. Hill, an RAF pilot flying in the army co-operation command in connection with the landing at Dieppe. This was understood to be the first P-W 190 destroyed by a Mustang.

CLAIMS RIVETING CHAMPIONSHIP

Shown at work is Carl Simon, of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, who recently set what is believed to have been a record by driving 1346 rivets in an eight-hour day. Since then there have been reports of other riveters doing better. Simon's employer has been unable to authenticate these claims and has issued a challenge to all comers for a contest to decide the championship.

Moving Picture Film "Frozen" by WPB

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—The War Production Board today froze all moving picture film in the hands of manufacturers, effective at 11:59 p. m. tomorrow night, and announced controls which will limit the movie industry to the amount of film used last year.

No standard-size, 35-mm film will be available henceforth for commercial advertising pictures, WPB ruled, and all other users, including the big movie studios, will have to apply to WPB for permission to buy unexposed film.

The thirty-five mm film for still cameras—the "candid camera" type—was not covered by the order because production already had been controlled through allocation of materials, WPB said, and a new order affecting film for amateurs "will be issued shortly."

Rubber Problem Will Be Debated At Radio Forum

Town Meeting of the Air Will Be Held at Milwaukee

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD
NEW YORK, Aug. 19—America's Town meeting stops in Milwaukee for its Blue broadcast at 9 o'clock Thursday night, the program now running fifty-five minutes instead of the former full hour. Question up for consideration is "How Can We Solve the Rubber Problem?" Three speakers have been announced, including Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma; John L. Collier, rubber company executive, and Joseph E. Pogue, banker and recently appointed chairman of the advisory sub-committee on rubber economics of the Synthetic Rubber committee of the Petroleum Industry War Council.

Dan Topping, owner of the Brooklyn Dodgers, professional football team, will be on hand via CBS at 8 when another of the Ted Husing shows, "Thirty Minutes to Play," makes its appearance. Mary Small, of the songs and Jeff Alexander's ragtime band, are the musical elements of the program.

Billed for the now-conducted Bob Crosby Music hall on NBC at 9 are Igor Gorin, concert singer, and Lucille Ball of the movies. Billie Burke again is to be guest of the Rudy Valley show with Joan Davis at 10 on NBC.

Bill Meaney, able bodied seaman, who has survived shelling by an enemy submarine, is to relate some of his experiences as guest of Men of the Sea on the Blue at 3:35. George Hicks is asking the questions.

DEFENSE GUARDS ARE BEING SWORN INTO FEDERAL FORCES

BALTIMORE, Aug. 18 (AP)—Major General Milton A. Reckord, commanding general of the Third Service Command, said today thousands of guards at vital defense plants are being sworn in as members of the Civilian Auxiliary Corps of the Internal Revenue forces.

This is true not only for the third command, Reckord said, but throughout the nation, as a program under the direction of the provost marshal general.

Under their new status, Reckord said, the guards will be subject to the articles of war just as are the men in the ranks of the army. They will be subject to court martial, but may not resign.

Those who refuse to meet requirements, will be allowed to resign now Reckord said, adding that regular army officers will have charge of the guards in specified defense areas.

The Third Service Command director is Col. John Cutchins, director of internal security.

How would you like to discover that your present set of tires contains far more mileage than you may have thought possible even with the best of care?

This is not an idle question. Back of it is a new and scientific method of increasing tire life. Tests have already been made at a number of Esso Dealer stations. In 16 out of every 17 cases car owners were literally amazed at the extra mileage their present tires could deliver. The chances are that you can get a lot more mileage too. See the Esso Dealer in your neighborhood.

Farrady Post Will Support D. F. McMullen

Delegates Instructed To Work for His Election as State Commander

FROSTBURG, Aug. 19.—Farrady Post No. 24, American Legion, at a special meeting Monday evening, endorsed the candidacy of Daniel F. McMullen, Cumberland attorney, for state commander of the Maryland Department of the American Legion.

The delegates from Farrady Post to the state convention to be held in Cumberland August 26 to 29 were instructed to vote and work for McMullen's election.

The post also contributed $25 to Outpost No. 24-B, Air Warning Service, to help defray the expense connected with the construction of a new observation tower on Mechanic street, which will replace the outlook on top of Big Savage Mountain.

78 Selectees Leave

Seventy-eight selectees from local draft board No. 4, left here at 6:47 a. m. today in two Blue Ridge buses for the Baltimore induction station, to take their final examination before being inducted into military service.

The group, the largest so far sent from the Frostburg board, consisted of sixty-four men from the 1-A classification and thirteen from 1-B and one man, William Evans, who was transferred from draft board No. 2, Havre de Grace, Md.

Two selectees of the original group of seventy-nine are already in the service, Harold Dallas Emch, Lonaconing, having enlisted in the army and Aloysius Fair, Midland, in the navy.

Eleven more selectees will be sent to Baltimore this month for final examination, completing the local board's quota for August.

Earl Hill, chief clerk of the Frostburg board, announced that a call for 140 men has been received by the board. These selectees will be sent in four groups of thirty-five each during the month of September.

City Plans Dog Pound

The Police department has secured a building on Sand Spring hill at the west end of town to be used as a dog pound. The building will be placed in use as soon as the city can secure the services of a dog catcher, who will be paid one dollar for each dog impounded.

According to Police Commissioner Arthur Thoms, complaints have been received from every section of the community about the damage caused by stray dogs. He stated that plans were well under way for riding the community of the dog nuisance.

Change Meeting Place

The Frostburg Rotary Club, which has been meeting during the summer months at Layman's farm, Garrett county, will meet in the Gunter hotel, commencing September 14.

Booster Club Elects

The Jr. O. U. A. M. Boosters' Club, consisting of all the Junior Order Councils of Allegany county, held the annual election of officers Monday evening, naming the following members to serve for the ensuing year:

John W. Timmons, Frostburg, president; John Elliott, Barton, vice-president; Francis Neat, Barton, secretary, and James Blair, Midland, treasurer.

The next meeting of the club will be held in the council hall of Queen City Council No. 49, Cumberland, September 16. The Daughters of America will be represented at the meeting.

Delia Allen Weds

Miss Delia Elizabeth Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Allen, Eckhart, and John E. Wolz, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wolz, Cumberland, were married Saturday evening in the rectory of St. Michael's church, this city, by the Rev. Dominic A. Bonomo, assistant pastor.

The assistants were Miss Hope Allen and Orville Wolz.

The bride wore a street-length gown of powder blue with a shoulder corsage of pink roses. Her attendant wore dark blue with a corsage of yellow roses. Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Robert Felty Dies Suddenly In Aurora

Heart Attack Is Fatal To Recent Visitor in Oakland

OAKLAND, Aug. 19.—Robert Felty, 81, well known in this section, died suddenly Monday evening at 7 o'clock in Mt. View hotel, Aurora, W. Va. He and Mrs. Felty had spent about a month at the Miller house, Second street, Oakland, and had gone to Aurora last Thursday. Death was due to a heart attack.

Mr. Felty was born in Eglon, W. Va., near Aurora, November 17, 1861, a son of the late John and Christina Felty, natives of Germany, and former residents of Oakland.

In his young manhood he traveled ten years as a wholesale groceryman, later conducting a wholesale grocery store in Confluence, Pa., for ten years. He moved to Springfield, Ohio, and started the Farmers National Bank which later merged with the First National Bank of that city. Mr. Felty was president of the Farmers Bank and vice-president and manager of the First National Bank there. He retired in 1932 and since that time he and Mrs. Felty had spent their winters in Orlando, Fla., and the remainder of the time with their daughter, Mrs. Roberta F. Franke.

Mr. Felty was a member of the Methodist church and the Masonic fraternity at Springfield. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Lena G. Felty, one daughter, Mrs. Franke, Baltimore; two grandchildren, Robert and Lehn Franke; three brothers, John Felty, Rowlesburg, W. Va.; Godfrey Felty, Eldridge, Md.; and Adolphus Felty, Columbus, O.; one sister, Mrs. Minnie Simpson, of Chicago.

Short funeral services were conducted Tuesday evening at the Bolander Funeral Home with Dr. A. B. Leamer, Lutheran pastor, officiating. The body was then shipped to Springfield for interment.

Duties of County Nurse Explained By Miss Cameron

Hardy-Grant Health Advisor Addresses Moorefield Lions

MOOREFIELD, Aug. 19.—Miss Blanche Cameron, Hardy and Grant county health nurse, addressed the Moorefield Lions club Monday night on the duties and functions of a state health nurse in counties like Hardy and Grant.

Miss Cameron explained that the program in Hardy county was too large to be fully covered by the limited personnel of the health department. She stated that the department tried to visit one third of the schools each year for the immunization of diphtheria and smallpox and that this work is included in the school program.

The second division of the work is the pre-school program and infant program. The nurse visits the homes of the children found to have defects and explains the necessity of taking measures to correct the defects. The third division of the program is the maternal program and deals with the establishment of pre-natal clinics. The fourth division is the tuberculosis program and Miss Cameron explained the work of the mobile unit which visits the county each year.

The fifth division is the venereal program and the clinic for this work is now located in Petersburg. The sixth and last phase of the program is the education and prevention program.

The state of West Virginia contributes most of the funds for this program but the work is aided by an appropriation of $550 from the county board of education and a like amount from the county court.

The Lions voted to support and sponsor the drive for junk and scrap metal in the county now being pushed by the local defunct council. Ralph J. Bean, commander of the local air raid precautions committee, asked the members of the club to co-operate with the plans for the coming blackout.

The annual ladies night will be held September 9 at the lodge and will feature a buffet dinner followed by a program. The Lions will have the annual stag party the following night, September 10. A benefit picture for the glasses-for-children fund will be held in the near future.

Schools To Open Sept. 8

Hardy county schools will open Tuesday, September 8, G. R. Kira-cofe, superintendent of schools, announced this week. The enrollment in the schools is expected to drop slightly except in the secondary schools, he said.

Kira-cofe also announced that a teachers meeting would be held Friday, September 4, in the high school in Moorefield.

The board of education has been working on the list of teachers for the county and are having considerable difficulty in the placements due to wartime conditions.

Search for Plane

Local members of the Civil Air Patrol searched Saturday for a plane reported down in the Bean Settlement section, but were unable to find any evidence of a crash.

Residents of that area reported that a plane was having trouble in the fog Friday and that the motor was missing. A crash was heard and several witnesses thought they saw a silver colored plane go down.

Corp. H. R. Shields and Town Sergeant Ted Sager, interviewed many residents in that area and arranged for them to direct the planes in the search by arrows pointing to the spot the crash was heard.

Civil Air Patrol members C. R. Powers, O. R. Oates, R. E. Fisher and Harold Dodd searched the area using three planes from the Moorefield Municipal Airport but were unable to find a sign of a crash.

New Wardens Enrolled

Marcellus Bean and John Shand-holtz were added to the list of Air Raid Wardens by Commander Ralph J. Bean at a meeting of the wardens Monday night. All wardens are taking courses to enable them to instruct the public of their raid blackout to be held in Moorefield within the next six weeks.

Chief Air Raid Warden Ted Sager stated that wardens would call at each home to explain what room would be the safest during an air raid, what precautions must be taken to prevent showing of lights, and other necessary duties.

Commander Bean also announced that some air raid shelters would be available to the townspeople and that these would be constructed in due time.

Extra Sugar Allotted

Apple butter will not be considered as a special item for additional sugar for its preparation according to a ruling of the state.

H. S. Bergdoll To Head Tucker Oil Association

Members Pass Resolution Favoring "Good Roads Amendment"

PARSONS, W. Va., Aug. 19.—Out of the reaches of the Eastern states gasoline rationing program, members of the Tucker County Oil Men's Association elected H. S. Bergdoll, Thomas, president for the ensuing year and passed a resolution favoring the passage of the "Good Roads Amendment" at the annual meeting Tuesday evening.

The amendment, if approved by West Virginia voters in the November 3 election will compel the state to spend all revenue realized for gasoline taxes to be spent on improving and maintaining West Virginia highways.

The resolution passed by the oil men favored the passing of this resolution and urged the members of the association to do all they can to encourage the citizens of the state to approve the bill's passage in the November election.

F. S. Farley, secretary of the West Virginia Petroleum association addressed the meeting and explained the part citizens of Tucker county can play in winning the war.

Other officers elected are P. L. Milkint, Thomas, vice president; John Ours, Parsons, secretary; Joseph K. Gillis, Parsons, chairman of the legislative committee; Roscoe Arbogast, Parsons, chairman of the public relations committee and W. E. Swartz, Jr., Parsons, chairman of the local affairs committee.

School Principals Are Appointed

Reardon Cuppett, superintendent of Tucker county schools, at a meeting of the board of education last night, announced the names of principals for the schools for the 1942-1943 school term. Cuppett said the appointments of teachers would be announced later.

Principals named include the following:

Ralph Wimer, principal of Parsons high school, succeeding Jason Wolford, who was made assistant principal of the school; Stellman Harper, principal of Thomas high school to succeed J. H. Patterson, who retired after serving as principal since 1925; Wayne Helmick, principal of Thomas graded school, Arthur Quattro, principal of Pierce graded school.

Ira McDowell, principal of Davis high school; Miss Naomi Williams, principal of Davis graded school; H. Dale Ridgeway, principal of Parsons graded school; R. E. King, principal of Hamrick school; Mrs. Sue Armentrout, principal of Bretz graded school; Miss Martha Bom-barger, principal of Benbush graded; Felix Colabrese, principal of Douglas graded school; William Smith, Mill Run; Mrs. Gertrude Auvil, St. George; and Richard Adams, named as principal of the re-opened Porterwood school.

Two schools were ordered reopened for this year, due to transportation difficulties. The two room school at Porterwood and the one room school at Fork Mountain.

Four schools were ordered closed due to lack of students. They are Salem, graded school; Wolfe, graded; (Continued on Page 8, Col. 7)

When a Girl Marries

Film Provides Trousseau For Cobina Wright, Jr.

The Hollywood fashion front furnishes this gem on clothes conservation and wise budgeting by glamorous girl Cobina Wright, Jr., who, it seems, couldn't find time, because of her screen commitments, to gather a trousseau for her recent marriage to Corporal Palmer Beaudette.

With characteristic ingenuity, Cobina solved the problem by prevailing upon Twentieth Century-Fox studio couturiers to design her wardrobe for her role in "Footlight Serenade," with an eye to its subsequent conversion into a trousseau. And the able craftsmen produced a wardrobe that makes Cobina today the envy of all Hollywood.

As a result, most of Cobina's clothes today are the same as those in which she appears with John Payne, Victor Mature, Betty Grable and Jane Wyman in the musical opening at the Strand theater tomorrow.

Miss Wright's "Footlight Serenade" wardrobe, as well as Betty Grable's and Jane Wyman's, were created by famed designer Earl Luick.

Misguided Mother Love Provides Film Theme

A mother's idolatrous devotion to an only son and the heroic sacrifice she makes to keep his love, is feelingly presented in "The Magnificent Ambersons," the Pulitzer prize story by Booth Tarkington produced and directed by Orson Welles for RKO Radio, starting today at the Liberty theater.

The action deals with the boy's downfall, precipitated by his unbridled arrogance and complete lack of self-discipline, and his ultimate regeneration. The plot unfolds against the swift-moving period of American life when the rural communities of the mid-west were being transformed into humming industrial centers.

Six dominant roles feature the cast and are portrayed by such players of recognized ability as Joseph Cotten, Tim Holt, Dolores

IN THE ARMY NOW!

Penny Singleton, as "Blondie" and Arthur Lake, as "Dagwood" Bumstead, go all-out for defense of America's right to laugh and be happy . . . even if their antics fail to amuse Edward Gargan in this scene from their newest Columbia comedy, "Blondie for Victory!" Stuart Erwin and Larry Simms also are featured in the film, which is based upon Chic Young's famous cartoon strip characters and is currently to be seen at the Maryland theater.

Costello, Anne Baxter, Richard Bennett and Agnes Moorehead.

Flight Film Pays Tribute to Air Heroes

Pat O'Brien, Glenn Ford and Evelyn Keyes today bring to the Maryland and theatre a splendid new drama of America's power-diving pilots, Columbia's thrilling "Flight Lieutenant." An exciting, "heart"-packed adventure story of a forgotten man of the air, who gives his all for a hero of tomorrow, "Flight Lieutenant" presents O'Brien as a hero of World War I, who, because of one tragic mistake, is ignored by the American eagles of today's war. Ford appears as his eager young son, determined to wipe from the skies all memory of his father's unhappy record.

"Flight Lieutenant" was directed with smooth, thundering speed by Sidney Salkow. Michael Blankfort penned the hard-hitting screen play, which pays equal and absorbing attention to the development of American aeronautics, to the father-and-son theme which provides the film with human interest and to the heartstirring romance between Ford and Miss Keyes, who is seen as the daughter of the man for whose death he is solely responsible.

The associate feature is "Blondie for Victory," latest in the Columbia comedy series based upon Chic Young's comic strip with Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms and Stuart Erwin.

Sturges Is Preston--Is Preston Sturges?

While directing "Sullivan's Travels," the new Paramount comedy currently at the Garden theater, starring Joel McCrea and Veronica Lake, Preston Sturges received a puzzling postcard from a movie fan. "Dear Preston," the card read. "I have seen your pictures lots of times and like you very much. You are very good-looking."

Immediately Sturges sent out the following memo:
"To: Publicity Department.
"From: Preston Sturges."

Rivalry of Some Parents Termed Curse to Child

Mania of Trying To Keep Up with the Neighbors Flayed by Doctor

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

A very harmful force to the character of our children is the American mania of trying to keep up with the neighbors.

It causes parents to make undue sacrifices for their children so these children may dress as well and have as many luxuries as their associates, with the inevitable result that the children fail to learn wholesome self-denials and good habits of economy and thrift.

This phobia for "keeping up with the Joneses" does still more harm to the average child in the United States because he is allowed to do about as he pleases so he won't be "different."

Ever so many parents hesitate to hold their children up, even before they are 12 or 14, to such desirable requirements as coming in from out of doors when the street lights appear, or going to bed at a reasonably regular and early hour.

The reason for the hesitation is because they fear the disapproval of the neighbor parents who don't so control their own children and because they can't bear to see their child denied or required to do what is not denied his playmates or required of them.

DOUBLE TROUBLE---IN HEARTS

Children Clever Pleadings

The biggest force related to this problem is in the children themselves. These youngsters are clever propagandists. Each youngster will tell his mother and father that other children's parents are more lenient. It often happens that the very child your child reports as having his way has played the same card with success on his parents, referring to you and your child.

Aiding and abetting this powerful force have been the writings and teachings of numerous child specialists, particularly psychiatrists: that when you cause your child through restrictions or requirements to be noticeably different from other children he associates with, you create an "inferiority complex" in him, and impair his personality. Since no parent wants a child with a warped personality, this warning goes far to settle the matter. Accordingly the child must have his way, no matter about his health, moral character and citizenship.

Rinehart Named To Farm Agency

Bid for Federal Aid in Hagerstown Is Successful

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 19. (AP)—D. L. Rinehart, prominent farmer, has been appointed a member of the state committee of the agricultural agency. Committee Chairman J. Ward Wood announced today.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Aug. 19. (AP)—City Engineer Charles W. Stump and Superintendent of the Municipal Water Department Albert Heard say Hagerstown's bid for federal aid for construction of a booster pumping station appeared successful, following a conference at Richmond, Va., with federal officials.

The station is to be constructed near Hallway at a cost of $15,000 to increase the city's water supply from the Potomac river.

Dodgers Trim Braves, Ending Scoring Slump

Curt Davis Just Misses Shutout On Eight-Hitter

Brooklyn Opens Up on Four Boston Pitchers, Collecting 19 Blows

BROOKLYN, Aug. 19 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers pulled out their scoring slump today with a nineteen-hit assault against four Boston pitchers which swamped the Braves, 11-1.

Curt Davis went all the way for the Dodgers, allowing eight hits, but he missed a shutout when Eddie Miller smacked his sixth home run of the season in the second inning. The Dodgers went to work on Starter Manuel Salvo in the opening frame, scoring two runs on a walk, an error and singles by Pete Reiser and Dolph Camilli, and routed him in the third when a single by Lew Riggs and a double by Billy Herman produced three more runs with the aid of another error.

At Javary followed Salvo and was tapped for Douglas by Dixie Walker and Herman and a single by Camilli in the fifth.

Reese's single, Reiser's double and Medwick's single accounted for another run in the sixth and brought in Bill Donovan to replace Javary. Johnny Rizzo's outfield fly scored another run.

Mickey Owen's double and a single by Reese produced a seventh inning tally and the Dodgers made two more in the eighth when five hits brought Johnny Salvo to Donovan's rescue. The box score:

Tigers Conquer Indians, 6 to 1

York's Three-Run Homer and Trucks's Pitching Beats Cleveland

DETROIT, Aug. 19. (AP)—Rudy York's three-run homer in the third inning and six-hit pitching by Virgil (Fife) Trucks gave the Detroit Tigers a 6 to 1 victory over the Cleveland Indians in a twilight game today. Ned Harris also hit a four-bagger for the Tigers in the eighth.

Navy Tosses Shade Terrapin Nine, 5-4

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 19. (AP)—Pitcher Bill Leashy's ninth inning single with the bases loaded and his team trailing by one run brought Navy a 5 to 4 triumph over Maryland's Old Liners in a tight Maryland-District of Columbia baseball game today.

The victory enabled Navy to gain an even break in loop competition for the year. Saturday they play Johns Hopkins in a non-league play ending their summer campaign.

Lloyd Roberts went the distance for Maryland and was nipped for eleven singles while Leashy and Paul Burdett, Navy's starting pitcher, held the Old Liners to three.

RIGGLEMAN IS NAMED RIDGELEY HIGH COACH; HAHN GOES TO KEYSER

Bill Hahn, coach at Ridgeley high school for the past year, has been appointed mentor at Keyser high school, according to a Mineral County Board of Education announcement yesterday.

At Ridgeley, Hahn will be succeeded by Jesse Riggelman, a graduate of Shepherd college, Shepherdstown, W. Va. Riggelman, whose home town is Gettersburg, W. Va., taught at Elliott City, Md., last year.

Hahn, who came to Ridgeley from Spencer (W. Va.) high, developed strong football and basketball teams during his stay at the nearby school. His 1940 grid outfit won the Potomac Valley Conference championship while his 1940-41 court combination, after copping the conference title, won sectional and regional tournaments to qualify for the West Virginia state finals where it was eliminated.

Navy's New Grid Coach Has No. 1 Rebuilding Job

Comdr. John Whelchel Is Optimistic Despite Gloomy Prospects

By PETE ZURLINDEN
ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 19. (AP)—Step up and meet the man who's saddled with football's No. 1 rebuilding job this year.

He's Comdr. John E. Whelchel, United States Navy's new head coach, and his task is to mold a sailor eleven capable of navigating a nine-game "suicide" schedule from the slim material left behind by Maj. Emory E. (Swede) Larson, who beat the Army consistently between 1939 and 1941.

Larson's great "two-fleet" squad was riddled by the Naval Academy's double graduation this year of both senior and junior classes in its speedup of academic work.

Whelchel is looking his task right in the eye and he's determined to succeed against such foes as Notre Dame, Columbia, Princeton, Georgia Tech — and Army.

Six Veterans To Return
"We've only six returning men from the first three teams we took to Philadelphia to meet Army last year," he added, displaying a characteristic fighting grin, "we'll have a team capable of giving a battle when the time comes."

Of last year's first three squads, Whelchel has inherited only one of Navy's twelve crack ball-carriers, Capt. Alan Cameron of San Gabriel, Calif., a fullback under Larson.

"Of the linemen coming back," he said, "we'll have to depend on Guard Art Knox, a first stringer last year, and five others who received limited experience in 1941."

"The balance of the team must come from the inexperienced members of the squad. And your guess as to their identity is as good as mine."

Hopes History Repeats
"It is pretty difficult to say how far the 1942 team will develop," he mused, "but Navy had some of its greatest teams during the last war and we hope history may repeat. All I can say is that we'll be out there fighting every Saturday."

Whelchel, a native of Gainesville, Ga., has been coaching on and off since he assisted "Gloomy Gil" Doobie with navy's 1919 squad. He spent two previous terms as a Navy assistant coach and developed teams of enlisted men representing various ships and the Norfolk Navy Yard. He returned to Annapolis last year to aid Larson.

"Swede hasn't left me much," he admitted, "but we'll start practice next week and see how far we can go toward keeping up the record."

Receives Commission
HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 19. (AP)—Kerr Whitfield, former business manager of athletics at Marshall college, recovering from an operation after an illness which forced him to resign a navy commission, received word today of his commissioning as a captain in the marine corps reserve.

Homers Decide Games as Yanks, Red Sox Divide

Boston Wins Opener 6-4 while New Yorkers Take Nightcap 2-1

BOSTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Home runs decided both games today as New York and Boston divided a doubleheader in their stretch drive for the American League pennant, the Red Sox taking the opener, 6-4, and the Yanks winning the nightcap, 2-1, before a crowd of 37,561 paying customers and 1,253 service men.

Two homers by Jim Tabor and one by Ted Williams, each with a man on base, accounted for all the Boston runs in the first game, giving Cecil (Tex) Hughson his tenth straight pitching victory and his sixteenth of the year against only three defeats.

Ernie Bonham hooked up in a tight mound duel with Boston's Joe Dobson in the nightcap, which Chabrier Keller broke up in the ninth inning with his twenty-first home run.

Keller hit No. 20 in the first game but it didn't save the league leaders, who suffered an additional loss when Spurgeon (Spud) Chandler, their starting pitcher, pulled a muscle in his back and had to retire in the fifth inning.

Chandler was ordered back to New York tonight to undergo an x-ray examination. He suffered his fourth defeat compared with thirteen wins, however, as Williams hit his twenty-sixth home run in the opening inning and Tabor hit No. six in the second. Norman (Red) Branch took over with the Yanks trailing by one run and pitched three-hit ball the rest of the way, but one hit was Tabor's other homer which proved to be the margin of victory.

Bill Dickey's double with the bases loaded gave the Yanks three runs in the third inning and Keller hit homer No. 20 in the eighth. The scores:

TOPS ON MOUND

Cecil (Tex) Hughson of the Boston Red Sox warms up at Fenway Park before going to the mound in search of another win to add to his string of victories, which already has reached 16. Now regarded as one of the top hurlers of both major leagues, Hughson has lost only three decisions this season.

Branch Rickey Says Baseball Should Continue without Emphasis on Profit

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 19. (AP)—Baseball should continue during the war without emphasis on profit, Branch Rickey, vice-president of the St. Louis Cardinals, said today.

And the originator of the baseball farm system, in an interview with The Sporting News, predicted the game would carry on although some minor leagues might fold in 1943.

"The game should and will continue," asserted Rickey. "Thousands look to it for diversion. But I warn that it should go on without emphasis on profit."

"Profits must be subordinated in these grave times, not only by the game, but by others. If we're going to win the war it is hardly the time to be thinking about enriching ourselves. It is on that principle that baseball must continue — will continue."

"The game has done a wonderful job so far and the fans appreciate it. Baseball has given many players to the service and it will give many more. The majors have not yet felt the full impact of what will come in the drain on man power."

For those leagues worrying about transportation Rickey had this advice:

"There will always be day coaches. The players don't need luxurious train travel. Take the Appalachian League for instance. Towns in that league are not more than twenty-eight miles apart on the longest pull. Heck, the players could walk that far."

Athletics Blank Senators, 8 to 0

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19. (AP)—Philadelphia's Athletics pounded three Washington pitchers for twelve hits and defeated the Senators 8 to 0 tonight before a crowd of 6,000. Roger Wolf gave up nine hits in scoring his shutout.

Bucs' Big Sixth Beats Reds 9-2

Pirates Score Eight Runs in One Frame--Derringer, Thompson Chased

CINCINNATI, Aug. 19 (AP)—Eight Pittsburgh runs in the sixth and Vince DiMaggio's fourth-inning homer sent Cincinnati's fallen Reds to their sixth straight defeat today, 9 to 2.

Cincinnati led with Paul Derringer, seeking his seventh win. He drew instead his ninth loss. Junior Thompson followed in the fatal sixth, but before a man was out, was relieved by Clyde Shoun who hurled effectively thereafter.

Nineteen scoreless innings lay behind the Reds' fifth-inning marker, manufactured after two were out on Ray Lamanno's single, a walk to Derringer and another single by Lonnie Frey. They scored again in the ninth on a single, a walk, and a double.

In the thirteenth men took part in one of the Bucs' biggest inning of the season; eight runs in four walks — only one intentional — singles by Blimp Phelps and Jimmy Waddell, a passed ball and doubles with the bases full by Coscarart and Maurice Van Robay. The box score:

Seeman Will Report To Army Grid Squad

WILLIAMS FIELD, Ariz., Aug. 19 (AP)—Lieut. George M. Seeman, former Nebraska and Green Bay Packers end, was ordered yesterday to report to the army football squad training at Camp Cooke, Cal., for a game in Los Angeles, August 30, against the professional Washington Redskins.

Seeman, a student officer in flight training at this twin-engine bombing field, is due to graduate next week, but officers said that because he has almost finished his required flying he would be allowed to leave in a day or two—wearing his wings.

Hopkins Lacrosse Men Defeat Middies, 5-3

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 19 (AP)—Johns Hopkins lacrosse men defeated Navy's stickers, 5 to 3, today in the first game between the two schools in more than ten years.

With the score tied, 3-3, in the third period, the Blue Jays drove over two goals in the fourth stanza for their win. After eight minutes of the fourth period, Ed Marshall passed to Henley Guild from in back of the goal. Guild pushed the shot home.

A few seconds later, Tom Zink dodged through the Middle defense and slipped in a running back hand shot. It was his second goal of the game.

Daughter Is Born To Mrs. Wes Ferrell

GREENSBORO, N. C., Aug. 19 (AP)—There is a newcomer in the Wesley Ferrell family, a feminine fan to yell for her baseball playing father wherever his future managerial duties take him.

A six pound, twelve-ounce girl was born to Mrs. Ferrell here yesterday afternoon and both mother and baby are doing fine.

The father, former major league pitching star, is now manager of the Lynchburg, Va., team in the Virginia League.

Colleges Change Football Slates To Suit Workers

Many Schools To Start
Games Later or Will Play Night Contests

NEW YORK, Aug. 19 (AP)—It is indeed a pleasure to report that a lot of the country's colleges think so much of defense workers' entertainment they're even changing their schedules so that the workers can get to see their football games this fall—at the usual charge per ticket.

An Associated Press survey showed today the schools are setting the usual 2 or 3 p. m. starting times back in several cases, they're switching from day to night games in other spots, they're carding Sunday games, and they're moving games from college campuses to big towns so that they'll be available to defense plant workers. The switch in sites of course, is also dictated by transportation problems.

Pitt May Play at Twilight
Naturally, the colleges are doing this just so the workers will have a means of relaxation this fall, with no idea of taking some of the "heat" off game receipts that are expected to dwindle. For instance, the Utah State-Colo. clash was switched from Little Logan to larger Ogden, Utah, with the announcement that there are 20,000 defense workers in the Ogden area who need entertainment. Even Ivy-covered Yale, where the football hasn't been any too hot these last few years, is toying with the idea of moving back the starting time for its games to 3:30, just so employees of plants will have time to make the kickoffs.

On the other hand, Jimmy Hagan, Pittsburgh's athletic director, gives you another view with the frank statement that the Panthers may shift their games to twilight tilts, but only if they find their gate receipts are affected by Saturday afternoon war work.

Schools Make Plans
Michigan State is thinking of 4 p. m. kick-offs to catch defense workers, Syracuse has scheduled three night games for the same purpose, Georgetown and George Washington have tentative plans to shift their Saturday afternoon meeting to Saturday night; University of Washington may change from its 1 p. m. starting time; St. Louis, St. Xavier of Cincinnati and John Carroll of Cleveland have booked Sunday games and Iowa State has shifted its starting time from 2 to 3 p. m.

Power Makers
The record crowd that will see the Yankee-Senator doubleheader on Sunday for the Army-Navy fund will have its chance to study power making at close range.

What makes power? Not mere bulk, by several long jumps. Ben Hogan weighs only 133 pounds and he's got plenty.

Babe Ruth and Walter Johnson should give part of the answer to the Yankee Stadium. They'll show you team play between hands and body, which also is labelled co-ordination.

You'll see that both, physically, and on the loose side, Johnson still has that free-swinging motion that will never tighten up. So has Ruth. You will still notice in each case a definite smoothness. Johnson never applied that final snap until the finish of the pitch. He knew how to wait before turning it loose.

The Babe had the same trick. He also knew how to wait, in place of applying the punch too quickly.

The Old Doc who goes under the name of Time may have removed part of this picture, but there will still be plenty left for watchful eyes that like to look inside.

The Main Answers
The two main answers are that Babe Ruth is still far ahead of all home-run makers with something over 700 four-base blasts to his credit, and that Walter Johnson is still well ahead of all rivals in shut outs and strike outs and low hit and low-run games.

Here are two simple facts that give you 100 per cent of the story, as far as these two venerable citizens are concerned. They will give a great crowd the chance to see at least the fundamentals that made them not only great, but the greatest in their departments of play.

Pitching for teams, with the run-making power of the Yankees, the Dodgers, the Giants, the Cardinals and the Red Sox of today, Johnson could have galloped in year after year with from forty to forty-five winning tickets.

My guess is that he lost more 1-0 and more 2-1 games than any pitcher in history. And he could still win from thirty to thirty-five games with a weak-hitting club.

About Johnson
As Ring Lardner once wrote, "Johnson is the only pitcher who kept building up a hospital list. On the day he worked there were always four or five ball players who were too sick to play."

They suddenly developed peculiar ailments, thinking of that fast ball whizzing by their bats.

And in his twenty years Johnson never threw a bean ball or a dust ball. His greatest worry was that he might hit some hitter, removing a section of his skull or breaking an arm or a rib.

As far as I can remember Johnson, in his entire career, never complained about an umpire's decision.

Marlboro's Race Meeting Opened

Walter Haight Wins Feature before Crowd Estimated at 5,000

UPPER MARLBORO, Md., Aug. 19 (AP)—A crowd estimated at 5,000, which reached the track without special bus or railroad service, watched the good three-year old Walter Haight win the six and one-half furlong feature race on today's opening card of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association's ten-day meeting.

General Manager Joseph A. Farrell said there was little difference between today's opening-day attendance and that of a year ago, before gasoline and tire rationing.

Walter Haight, ridden by Willie Balzaretto, paid $12.50, $5.50 and $4.60. Cushlamacree, running second, paid $5.00 and $4.10, and Discretion finished in the show spot at a $6.10 mutual.

Balzaretto, frequent winner at Cumberland, opened the meeting by driving S. Maloney's Allentown home ahead of seven platers in another six and one-half furlong race. Allentown paid $8.30, $3.50 and $2.70.

Allentown and R. L. Parsons' Saddling Bell, winner of the second race, made a $21.20 mutual for 291 holders of winning daily double tickets.

Wagering on the first two races and the daily double was $33,423, compared with $35,980 last year, but many late arrivals were shut out from betting on the first race.

Long-shot players got a lucky break in the third race when the lightly-regarded Big Sneeze sprinted over five and a half furlongs to finish ahead of eight other two-year olds and pay its backers $75.10 to win, $30.10 for place and $6.20 for show.

The fourth race, for three-year olds over five and one-half furlongs, also turned up a long-priced winner in Brasen Husay, which paid $21.70, $7.30 and $5.20.

Three Matches Played
In County Net Tourney
Three matches were played yesterday in the Allegany county championship tennis tournament with Robert Sutton in men's singles, Miss Betty Sutton in women's singles, and Miss Louise Wilson and L. E. Van Sant in mixed doubles registering victories.

Sutton turned back Jimmie Hale 6-1, 6-3, and will make his next start against Robert Bane in the quarter-finals. Miss Fluke eliminated Miss Wilson 6-6, 6-3, and will tangle with Mrs. Gordon L. Bowie this morning on the Garlitz courts in a semi-final engagement.

Miss Wilson and Van Sant, in the mixed doubles, scored over Mrs. Robert Stanfield and Joe Garlitz, 6-4, 6-3, and will meet the combination of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Bowie in the semi-finals.

GENUISES AT MISTAKES
LUCKY indeed are those people who seem to do everything right. In any department of life, whatever decision they make usually turns out to be the winning one. On the other side of the scale are those poor unfortunates who appear to have pretty fair judgment in the courses they choose, only to learn that things would have worked out much better if they had chosen another alternative. Some of these are virtual geniuses in finding how to make mistakes, at the bridge table as well as elsewhere.

At two duplicate tables, the heart 3 was led against that contract, one declarer making it and the other being set three tricks, due to difference in method of play. The one who made it decided to go after the spades, and led the 3 to the 9. North held up his A, whereupon the K knocked it out. North sent back the heart 5 to the A, and the club 9 was finessed to the Q. North then knocked out the last heart stopper, the K. The club 4 to the A dropped the K, and three spades were run, followed by the diamond J, which was sent through to the Q. South had only diamonds left, so scored his A and then had to give East his contract with the 9 to the K.

After the other declarer got the first trick with the heart J, he decided to work on clubs, fearing that if the opponents got the club A out of dummy, there would not be enough entries to score the spades. He sent the club 9 to the Q. North knocked out the heart A, and then the club A dropped the K. With no heart to lead back to his own hand, East then called the diamond J from dummy, letting the Q win it. South now switched to the spade 4, the K being put on and North holding up his A. Next came the diamond 10, which South allowed to win. With his goose now cooked, poor East called the diamond 3 to his K and South's A. The diamond 9 and 8 were cashed also, and the spade 5 led. The Q was called from dummy, the A winning and the 8 coming back to the J for the seventh trick by the defenders. South then had to lead his heart Q to the K to give up the final trick, but the declarer was down three.
